HOUSE COMMITTEE OTES SALES TAX TWO PER CENT

Author Chappell Expects Vote To Raise Between
$5,000,000 and $21,000,000
Revenue Yearly.

TE ON REPEAL EXPECTED TODAY

County Option Bill Will Come Up for Debate in Senate as First Order.

The general assembly formally met yesterday for the bitterest session of the present special session—the senate fight over the tax bill which is scheduled to begin this morning—the house and means committee unexpectedly approved the Chappell 2 per cent general sales tax.

The liquor fight grew hotter as the hour for a decision drew near. Senator David S. Atkinson, of Savannah, leader of the wets, announcing that he felt certain that a majority would be obtained.

The measure with Senator Walter Harrison, of Millen, and Robert Robinson, of Montezuma, leaders, insisting that they were sure of 30 votes against it, more than enough to bring about defeat.

Expects Vote Today.
Senator Atkinson, who also is chairman of the senate rules committee, announced that he will be called upon for action immediately upon convening this morning. He said he expected a late vote this afternoon.

Meanwhile, Senator Harrison issued a terse statement saying the bill will not pass.
The bill needs 27 votes to be passed, he said. "We have 30 votes against it. There are only 27 votes."

The senate will take up the Purnum-Pope substitute for the Thomas bill, which provides local option on a county referendum basis instead of the out-taxation of liquor in the 16 counties listed in the Thomas bill, passed last week by the house.

Approves Substitution.
Representative Spence Grayson, of Chatham county, leader of the wet forces in the house, said the substitute "appears acceptable."

Grayson said he favored acceptance of the substitute if it is passed by the senate.
Other wet leaders in the house have made no effort, it is understood, to oppose adoption of the substitute.

The ways and means committee on the Chappell general sales tax bill came after a day of routine bills and otherwise marked by pre-vote firming in the senate on the liquor bill.

$5,000,000 From Tax.
Representative Allen Chappell, Sumter, author of the sales tax bill, told the ways and means committee that he believed the sales tax would yield upwards of $5,000,000 a year.

"I think the yield will be closer to $21,000,000 annually," he said. However, we will not know just how much can be obtained until we try it out."

A number of administration leaders fought the favorable report on the sales tax. The committee's vote was 20 to 18.

Representative A. A. Marshall, of Macon county, one of the leaders of the group opposing the bill, said he would submit a minority report.

"I do not believe the house will pass it," he said.

Impressions of Denmark

An Introduction to the Danish Farmer and How Education, Effort and Thinking Are Helping Him Solve His Problems.

This is the first of a series of articles by Ralph McGill, sports editor of The Constitution, who is in Denmark under a Rosenwald Fellowship. Mr. McGill gives some impressions of Denmark and its people in this article.

By RALPH MCGILL.
COPENHAGEN, Denmark.—(By Mail).—One goes from Vejle, where the great fjord is, to the village of Jelling. A thousand years ago the commerce of north Europe passed through it along the highway from Schleswig to the north of Jutland.
I went with a young school teacher and stood before one of the great runic stones. On it one may see a rude carving representing the Man of Nazareth. Before it is another stone and on it one may read, time-worn but legible, the words:
"King Gorm made this monument to the memory of his wife, Thyra, who he aided Denmark."
The larger stone has an inscription which reads:
"Harold, King, ordered this stone as a memorial to Gorm, his father, and Thyra, his mother."
The stone was placed there about 980 A. D.
The young teacher smiled and said:
"The Roman legions left England in 410. The Jutes ravaged the island then. A thousand years before the event at Bethlehem they were tilling fields in Denmark. The Vikings sailed from the fjord at Vejle. Denmark has a historical succession of kings since Harold."
TRY TO IMAGINE WHO PUT THEM THERE
There was a swirling snow blowing, and we looked at the stones and the snow clinging to them and tried to imagine the men who put them there.
"You have seen the old Viking ship they excavated from a hill? Perhaps it was one of those which sailed to North America before Continued in Page 5, Column 2.

ROOSEVELT WARNS AGAINST PAY CUTS

Reductions Will Force
Government To Consider
New Course, He Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—A warning to industry that wage cuts would depress business further, and force the government to "consider other means of creating purchasing power" came today from President Roosevelt.

Calling also for prices low enough to be within the reach of the public, in a formal statement issued at his press conference, he said:
"Industrialists kill the goose that lays the golden egg when they keep prices up at the expense of employment and purchasing power. Industrialists kill the goose that lays the golden egg when they cut wages and thereby reduce purchasing power. Either policy is self-defeating and suicidal."

Not Out of Wages.
In asserting that mass production industries such as steel should charge low prices, he emphasized that price reductions should not come out of wages.

"Those who believe in the profit system," he said, "must recognize that those who get the profits when business is good must bear the losses when business temporarily is slack."

"Those who get the profits when industry gets the volume are the ones to bear the risk of such price reductions as may be necessary to stimulate and restore volume."

Wage Cutting Reported.
The statement was issued in response to a reporter's query whether the President agreed with B. F. Fairless, president of United States Steel, who told the senate unemployment committee last Saturday that prices could not be reduced without cuts in costs, of which wages are the most important part.

Mr. Roosevelt, who frequently has called for reductions in prices of building materials to stimulate housing construction, said his statement today was prompted in part by statistics showing wage cuts already had been effected in some industries and were reported to be impending in others.

Soprano Announces Marriage
To Grindell-Matthews,
Wireless Expert.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Ganna Walska, the soprano, announced today she married "Mister Grindell-Matthews" last week in London.

Her announcement was made through a secretary at her villa in the Paris suburbs. The secretary said the singer returned to France yesterday from London. Details of the marriage were withheld.

The secretary added that the bridegroom had "gone back to his mountains," but that the couple planned to go next month to some winter sports resort.

Ganna Walska, 45 years old, was divorced in 1931 from Harold Fowler McCormick, of Chicago.

LYNCH BILL FOES FACE 'GAG' DRIVE

16 Sign Cloture Petition,
But Shelving of Measure
Soon Is in Sight.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Supporters of the anti-lynching bill resorted to the senate's debate-end cloture rule tonight in a final effort to break the stubborn filibuster against that measure.

Sixteen names, the required number, were affixed to a petition for cloture and its actual filing awaited only such time as Senator Neely, Democrat, West Virginia, could obtain the floor.

Under cloture procedure, two days after the filing of the petition, the senate votes automatically on the question of whether cloture shall be applied. If two-thirds of those voting approve, debate is thereafter limited to a single one-hour speech by each senator until a vote is taken.

Those who have followed the battle are convinced the necessary two-thirds vote will not be forthcoming.

Shelving Seen.
Leading supporters were quick to see that unless a vote could be forced by cloture, the bill would probably be shelved within a few days.

Those who signed the petition were: Wagner, Democrat, New York; Van Nuys, Democrat, Indiana; Neely, Democrat, West Virginia; La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin; Minton, Democrat, Indiana; Brown, Democrat, New Hampshire; Clark, Democrat, Missouri; McGill, Democrat, Kansas; Schwelienbach, Democrat, Washington; Truman, Democrat, Missouri; Bone, Democrat, Washington; Bulkley, Democrat, Ohio; Hitchcock, Democrat, South Dakota; Copeland, Democrat, New York; Thomas, Democrat, Utah; and Guffey, Democrat, Pennsylvania.

Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia, said: "The entire time of this congress has been devoted to the anti-lynching bill and important legislation has been forgotten. The President's program has been laid aside."

Rich Sister of Manville Gives Up Citizenship

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Lorraine Manville Dresselhuys, wife of the wealthy Dutch industrialist, Cornelius Dresselhuys and heiress in her own right to some $10,000,000 of the Manville asbestos fortune, has renounced her American citizenship and become a Dutch subject.

She appeared before a federal judge in Brooklyn last Thursday to take the necessary steps, it was disclosed today, and now is on a fishing trip in a yacht off Miami, Fla. She is a sister of Thomas F. (Tommy) Manville.

She thus became the second American woman of great wealth to renounce her citizenship within the last few weeks. The first was the Countess Haugwitz-Revntlow, the former Barbara Hutton, who has become a naturalized Danish subject.

Colonel Attilio Biseo, flight commander, was at the controls of one plane, and young Mussolini the other.

PLANT-TO-PROSPER HAILED AS SLOGAN OF 'BETTER TIMES'

Constitution's Campaign
To Aid Farmer Praised by Georgia Editors in Predictions of Success.

Educators Plan To Make Aid Available to All in Quest for Awards.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.
"Better times for all Georgia," and "the reawakening and rehabilitation of Georgia" were predictions made by two leading Georgia editors yesterday for The Atlanta Constitution's "Plant-to-Prospere" campaign. State agricultural leaders planned to give every aid to farmers in their efforts to win recognition as Georgia's best.

Louie L. Morris, editor of The Hartwell Sun and former president of the Georgia Press Association, praised the program in the following telegram to Major Clark Howell, president and publisher of The Constitution:

"We extend sincere congratulations upon your 'Plant-to-Prospere' competition offering such magnificent awards to farmers of our state. Surely you have struck the keynote and sounded the greatest challenge of the day for the Empire State of the South. It is to be largely instrumental in re-awakening and rehabilitation of Georgia."

Freddie Braggs, editor of the Griffin Daily News, former Georgia state commander of the American Legion, congratulated the program.

In a letter to Major Howell, Quincy Melton, widely-known editor of The Griffin Daily News, former Georgia state commander of the American Legion, congratulated the program.

COAL PRICE RAISES CITY WATER COSTS

Total Increase of $30,000
Feared If Railway Rate
Boost Plea Is Granted.

Cost of operating Atlanta's waterworks plant will be increased by approximately $30,000 this year if prices on coal as fixed by the Guffey-Vinson act of 1937 are sustained and a proposed 15 per cent freight rate increase goes into effect, Zode Smith, superintendent of the city waterworks, revealed yesterday.

The superintendent indicated the city may abandon the use of coal and revert to other sources for power unless some revision is made in the present prices.

Charles Murphy, a representative of the city attorney's office, is now in Washington seeking a hearing before the National Bituminous Coal Commission. His purpose is to present the facts to members of the commission in an effort to get them to authorize a reduction of prices.

Under provisions of the Guffey-Vinson act, the proposed increase in freight rates, the city will have to pay $4.25 a ton for coal which cost only $2.45 in 1933 and $3.60 a ton under the NRA. Superintendent Smith pointed out.

"In 1933 we bought coal as low as 25 cents a ton at the mines with a $2.20 freight rate, making a total of $2.45 a ton," Smith said. "Under the NRA the same coal cost us $1.35 a ton at the mines and $2.26 a ton for freight, making a delivered price of about $3.60 a ton. Now the price has been raised to $1.70 a ton, and with a freight rate of $2.54 a ton, Continued in Page 2, Column 6.

Mussolini Planes Arrive in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Two Italian trans-Atlantic planes, one piloted by Premier Mussolini's son, Bruno, landed here today after a non-stop flight from Dakar, French West Africa.

The two planes reached Rio de Janeiro at 6:59 p. m. (3:59 p. m. Atlantic time) completing the 3,200-mile flight across the south Atlantic and down the Brazilian coast from Natal where a third Italian plane landed.

Colonel Attilio Biseo, flight commander, was at the controls of one plane, and young Mussolini the other.

His Honor Looks On as Daughter Receives Diploma

UNUSUAL EMBRACE TOLD WRIGHT JURY

Publicity Man Testifies to Conversation With Defendant After Killing

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—(AP)—A publicity man, Art La Vove, testified today that Paul A. Wright, 38, told him about six hours after he slew his young wife, Evelyn Wright, and his friend, Evelyn Kimmel, that he shot them because they were in an unusual embrace.

"What do you mean—that kind of an embrace?" La Vove said he asked Wright at the Glendale jail. "Well, it was quite an embrace," the witness testified Wright replied.

La Vove is publicity director at Union Air Terminal, of which Wright was president at the time of the killing at the Wright home last November 9.

Defense Opens Today.
The prosecution rested after La Vove's testimony and a recess was taken in Wright's murder trial until 2 p. m. tomorrow, when the defense will open its case.

La Vove's testimony followed the reading of Wright's story of the shooting as given to Glendale police. In this statement, Wright said he shot his 29-year-old wife and Kimmel, 32, in a "white" rage upon finding them embracing on a piano bench.

Earlier, a living model "dressed" for the slain Mrs. Evelyn Wright and Kimmel. The model was Thorneville Rogers, associated with Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler.

First Rogers doubled for Mrs. Wright. With Rogers back to the jury, Giesler indicated with a pointer—acting upon instructions based on testimony by Dr. A. F. Wagner—where the four bullets from Wright's German luger pistol entered Mrs. Wright's body.

By implication, the jury was relatively in the same position—somewhere in the Wright's living room—that Wright was in when he emptied his gun into his wife and Kimmel last November 9.

Then, with Rogers facing the jury—as a double for Kimmel—Giesler again indicated where the three bullets entered Kimmel's body.

Mayor Talks As Daughter Is Graduated

It's How Fast You Run, Not How Many in Race, He Tells Graduates

It matters not how many are in the race—it all depends on how fast you can run.
Those were the words of advice and encouragement Mayor Hartfield gave 94 boys and girls who closed their high school careers last night at the 10th mid-year graduation exercises of Commercial High school, at the Erlanger theater. But for one graduate, Mildred Hartfield, they had an added meaning—they came from dad.

The mayor was the guest speaker at the exercises. He told the graduates they are entering a world filled with opportunities and urged them to make the best of every opportunity.

"There will be competition," he said, "but for those who are skilled and those who are willing to work there will always be rewards. The number competing makes no difference; the rewards will go to the swift."

Pointing to the value of education he explained that the average automobile owner who drives an automobile every day in the year spends more for gasoline alone than he does on education and all the other functions of city government.

Glancing into the future, three members of the graduating class visioned conditions as they will exist in 1950. Jerry Lewis pictured the citizen of 1950; Mabel Patterson, the schools of 1950, and Dorothy Lancaster, the class in 1950.

Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of city schools, presided at the exercises. E. L. Floyd, principal of Commercial High school, delivered the awards, and E. S. Cook, president of the Board of Education, awarded the diplomas.

Blood Tests for Mothers Favored As Bills To Fight Syphilis Impend

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Backed by physicians, public health officers and women's organizations, a bill to require expectant mothers to have blood tests for syphilis is now before the New York state legislature.

Passage of the measure within a month is confidently predicted by its sponsors who call it the opening gun in a drive for similar laws in all states to prevent the infection of 60,000 babies born annually with syphilis.

According to the results of a nation-wide American Institute of Public Opinion survey, the passage of such laws would be widely approved by the public. Nearly 9 out of every 10 persons polled throughout the nation said each state should require doctors to test expectant mothers for syphilis.

Wintry blasts riding a high pressure area from the northwest besieged Atlanta yesterday tumbling the mercury 25 degrees. The weatherman predicted a 20-degree low for this morning.

Snow clouds that sprinkled large easily melted flakes intermittently yesterday morning moved eastward during the afternoon, giving way to fair skies and gradually falling temperatures.

Fair and colder was the prediction for today.
After looking closely at his weather map, the observer said the present cold wave probably would break up tomorrow night if the low pressure area now over the northern Rockies continued.

Snow began falling about 7:30 o'clock yesterday and continued at intervals until late in the afternoon. An accumulative amount of one-tenth inch of snow fell, the weatherman said.

Telephone and power companies yesterday reported that the Monday night freak windstorm did little damage.

The Atlanta Weather Bureau issued frost warnings to south Georgia farmers.

Atlanta's present cold began Monday night with high winds and the low temperatures yesterday were in striking contrast to the blue skies and bright sun which sent the mercury to 70 degrees Monday.

STORM WARNINGS FLASHED TO SHIPS

Liners Delayed, 50-Mile
Gale Hits Great Lakes;
Winds Batter New York.

By The Associated Press.
The eastern half of the nation, beset by floods, storms and icy weather, reported five deaths and one person missing last night as the result of swollen streams and ice.

A cold wave, preceded by snow flurries as far south as Macon, Ga., rode into Dixie. Colder temperatures were forecast.

The cold blast brought snowfall to 11 states. A southeastern gale troubled the eastern seaboard's shipping and traffic.

H. E. Austin, 23, was drowned when a bread truck skidded from an ice-coated highway into the swollen Big Harpeth river near Nashville, Tenn. A negro was drowned near Shelbyville, Tenn., in a similar accident. A child froze to death near Crocker, S. D.

Three Drown in Illinois.
Eddie Proctor, 6-year-old schoolboy, and Ralph Hartness, 20, a truck driver, were drowned in Illinois, where rain-laden streams forced hundreds of families to seek safety on higher ground.

Flooded thousands of acres of farm lands and damaged winter wheat crops. Ralph Hartness was reported drowned after a tug struck a railroad bridge and foundered in the Illinois river near La Salle.

Little crop damage was expected in the south. The Florida frost warning service predicted possibilities of frost in north and central Florida, but said the state's rich fruit and vegetable crops would not be damaged. Some sections, particularly Tennessee, reported the rains and snow would be beneficial, due to lack of moisture in the ground.

Livestock Threatened.
Sub-freezing temperatures were forecast for the sugar and trucking region of Louisiana. Fruit trees in most sections were not expected to be damaged, as buds had not appeared. Livestock, however, was threatened in low-lying areas of the flooded districts.

Snow fell in Georgia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio, New York, Missouri, Wisconsin, Indiana and Minnesota. A four-inch fall was reported at Monterey, Tenn., and Evansville, Ind. New England's blanket of snow vanished rapidly under persistent rains and comparatively high temperatures.

In the New England area, men had to postpone their efforts to dock the great liner Carinthia at Boston until a 43-mile gale abated. Schools in many communities were closed. Water, formed by the rapid melting of snow under Continued in Page 10, Column 4.

League Expected To Adopt Compromise on Sanctions

Plan Would Let Members Do as They Pleased Against Japan.

GENEVA, Jan. 25.—(P)—An unofficial understanding giving to the League of Nations members freedom from applying sanctions emerged tonight on the eve of the League council's 100th session as a possible compromise between Great Britain and France and the smaller, anti-sanctions nations.

Under such a compromise, the "punitive" Article 16—or sanctions article—would remain in the League covenant. The fate of the article in the face of discontent over sanctions is one of the issues before the council here.

League circles said the Anglo-French scheme was to inform the anti-sanction nations in private talks they had freedom to act as they pleased provided the text of the article was untouched.

Ready for Restoration.

Diplomatic quarters said that would leave the article "ready for restoration" if it should be needed. Russian sources reported Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign relations, was prepared to follow such an Anglo-French lead.

(In Paris, where British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden conferred with French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos and Premier Camille Chautemps, it was stated France and Britain agreed to fight attempts to weaken the League pact.

(Diplomats said they agreed on a united stand against attempts to kill sanctions clauses in the covenant, as well as any attempt to have the international organization recognize Italy's conquest of Ethiopia.)

Permanent officials predicted the session would be short, with little done in the open meeting but much accomplished in secret session and in Geneva hotels.

While Foreign Secretary Eden and Foreign Minister Delbos met in Paris to lay down the Franco-British stand on sanctions, representatives of smaller nations already here left no doubt they sought freedom from such measures.

Four Main Questions.

Four main questions on the League's agenda included:

1. China's appeal against Japan in their undeclared war.
2. An urgent petition by the general council of the Jewish congress that the League council deal with the question of rights of Rumanian Jews under the minorities treaty.
3. Reports of economic and financial committee.
4. The Turkish government's reservation and observations on the preparation for the first elections of the Sanjak of Alexandretta under a settlement between France and Turkey.

(The sanjak (state) of Alexandretta in northwestern Syria received a grant of autonomy last year and a committee named by the League began work to organize and control elections for the parliament of the district.)

It was expected generally China's appeal against Japan would be limited to a speech by Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, chief of the Chinese delegation, bringing up to date the Chinese version of the undeclared war.

China's Next Step.

Under the letter of the League's laws, following the failure of the 1937 Brussels conference to do anything about the conflict, China's next logical step would be to demand condemnation of Japan as the aggressor by the council.

This would open the way for sanctions, but since these failed to halt Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, many League members would be reluctant to vote them against Japan.

Chinese delegates have indicated they have no desire to ask for something they cannot get.

China already has invoked application of Articles 11 and 17 of the covenant. Under Article 10, the council will advise its members how to "respect and preserve the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the League."

Article 11 states that "any war or threat of war" is "a matter of concern to the whole League," and Article 17 provides for arbitration.

Before paper was invented China's scribbles were on strips of wood, and later on cloth.

WILLIAM W. BANKS COMMITS SUICIDE

Former Atlanta Banker, in Ill Health, Ends Life in Tifton.

TIFTON, Jan. 25.—(P)—William Walter Banks, 64, who before his retirement ranked as one of the outstanding business and civic leaders of the state, died of a bullet wound in an office building here today.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict that he "came to his death at his own hand by pistol wound." He had suffered several heart attacks in the last two years, and had planned to enter a hospital for treatment.

His wife and friends she called when she heard a shot found Banks dying.

Body To Be Cremated.

The body was taken to Macon this afternoon for cremation, the ashes to be placed as he requested in his mother's grave at Senoia. No funeral services were held here, but rites will be held at 11 o'clock (E. S. T.) tomorrow at Hart's mortuary in Macon.

Banks attained prominence in banking circles here, where he served 20 years as cashier of the bank of Tifton.

He moved to Atlanta in 1917, when he was made a vice president of the Third National Bank. This bank and others later were consolidated with the Citizens & Southern Bank, and Banks became executive manager of that organization.

He continued with that position until 1925, when he retired voluntarily because of ill health. He continued for a time on the board of directors.

Headed Chest Drive.

The same year of his retirement as a banker, he tackled a difficult job for the Community Chest in Atlanta, which set up $200,000 short of the quota set for that year's charity program. He accepted personal responsibility for continuing the campaign against his physician's orders, saying:

"I love Atlanta, and her needs and obligations far transcend any personal interest of mine."

A native of Spalding county, Banks moved here in 1897. The bank at that time had a capital of $25,000 and deposits of $18,000, and in the 20 years he remained, it paid $150,000 in dividends and built a new banking house.

He was active in other business institutions in Atlanta. He returned to Tifton in 1936 to organize the Farmers Bank, but retired from this venture in 1937. Friends said he had mentioned plans for organizing another bank in south Georgia.

His wife and a brother survive.

Harold Sharpsteen, The Constitution's bridge authority, will present a complete analysis of the Culbertson distributional notrump openings.

With their responses, at the sessions of the school today. The lesson will include an outline of requirements for opening notrump bids of one, two, three and four. Mr. Sharpsteen will illustrate the difference in high-card requirements for notrump raises and suit takeouts.

The Constitution series, open to all Atlantans and residents of near-by communities, includes a complete course in the Culbertson system of bidding and play. Each lesson in the series is complete within itself, making it convenient for new players to enroll in the classes at any time.

Constitution readers presenting The Constitution's bridge school courtesy coupon are admitted to any class for 35 cents. The regular instruction fee, without the coupon, is $1. Classes consist of a 45-minute lecture by Mr. Sharpsteen followed by supervision in actual play and The Constitution's rubber bridge sweepstakes events.

All players take notebooks and playing cards to the classes and may attend singly or in pairs as tables are formed for playing lessons after the lecture period is over. Night sessions of the school are largely attended by Atlantans, many players and persons identified with Atlanta's business and professional circles.

COUNCIL PAY BOOST PASSED BY SENATE

Broader Power for Recorder, Changes in Election Voted.

A 100 per cent increase in pay for Atlanta city councilmen, broadened power for city recorder and a change in the method of election of the city comptroller and the building inspector were provided in a bill passed by the state senate yesterday.

Senator Millican, of Fulton, presented the measure as a substitute for a house bill. His proposal doubles the salary of council members from $50 to $100 a month but does not affect the mayor's salary.

City recorders will have the right to "60 days in the stockade" instead of 30 days, if the bill is passed by the house and approved by the Governor.

The bill provides the city comptroller and the city building inspector be elected by general council, instead of by the people in regular city elections. The incumbents, Comptroller B. Graham West and Inspector C. J. Bowen, would serve the remainder of the terms to which they were elected last year.

Two Couples and Child, Destitute, Live in Cave and Tent in DeKalb

While most Atlantans fired furnaces, pulled on more blankets and drew overcoats closer about them, a group of unfortunate humans tried to keep warm in a tent and a dirt cave a few miles from Decatur.

DeKalb county police found them Sunday. Two men, their wives and a three-year-old girl were huddled around a small oil stove in a cave which had been hollowed out of a deep gully by erosion.

Near by, two more members of the family were fighting the elements in a threadbare tent. Police learned that the men, Willie, Eustus and Virgil Hicks, came here from Columbus several weeks ago and sought work. One got a job with a dairyman in DeKalb county, who gave permission to him to use the cave.

And so a "home" was established. Side walls of dirt. A rickety wooden floor. A roof of galvanized iron. Furniture was one bed, in which the couples took turns sleeping. A rooster and two dogs were their only other possessions.

Virgil and his wife lived in the tent. Yesterday the families left for Macon, police said, where the men had learned there were jobs.

BAYONET BATTLE KILLS 400 CHINESE

Reinforced Armies Open Simultaneous Offensives Along Yangtze River.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 26.—(Wednesday)—(P)—Heavy casualties were reported today in bitter bayonet fighting along the Yangtze river above Nanking as reinforced Chinese and Japanese armies launched new offensives simultaneously.

Chinese said both sides suffered severe losses as they fought for hours at close range near Wuhu, 60 miles up the river from the former Chinese capital, with Japanese warships shelling Chinese positions.

Claim Tsinling Circled.

They placed their own casualties at 400.

Chinese reported they had captured Hohsiang. Along the Tientsin-Pukow railway, north of Nanking, Chinese forces reported they were driving back Japanese near Pengpu, advance point of the invaders' northward drive toward Suchow.

Chinese cavalry was said to have surrounded the Japanese garrison at Tsinling in Shantung province.

Admit "Major Conflict."

(Foreign Minister Koki Hirota admitted the hostilities had developed into a major conflict, but said time had not yet arrived to declare war. He said "only a small amount of arms and munitions is being supplied to China by Great Britain" and "even this, theoretically, is a business proposition."

(In Geneva, the League of Nations' council prepared for the opening of its meeting today with the Chinese-Japanese conflict as one of the major questions on its agenda. China's delegate, Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, was expected to deliver a speech bringing up to date China's version of the undeclared war.)

New Guatemalan Stamps Honor Roosevelt

Here is the commemorative series of four airmail stamps issued by the government of Guatemala honoring the United States on the 150th anniversary of the signing of the constitution. President Roosevelt's picture thus appears on a foreign postage stamp where it could not be used on a stamp in this country because of a policy against using living president's portraits on stamps. The sheet from which this picture was made was furnished by R. T. Freeman. The stamps were printed in Holland.

F. D. R. Honored By Guatemala On Stamp Issue

The picture of a living United States President has appeared last on a postage stamp.

President Roosevelt's portrait is on the 4-cent air mail stamp issued recently by the Guatemalan government as an act of friendship commemorating the 150th anniversary of the signing of the United States Constitution.

The Central American country issued a commemorative series of four air mail stamps, which are arranged so they may be used as a group or separately. On each of the stamps are the dates "1787-1897 to 1937-1939."

Around the four stamps are the same dates and the inscription in commemoration of the "150th Anniversary of the United States Political Constitution."

The first of the series is a 15-cent air mail stamp, on which is the picture of George Washington and the inscription, "First in Peace, First in War and First in the Hearts of His Countrymen."

The second stamp is the Roosevelt stamp with the inscription, "Good Friend of the People of Latin America."

Third in the series is another 4-cent stamp which shows the continents of South and North America joined by the Isthmus of Panama. The fourth is another 15-cent air mail stamp which pictures the Pan-American building in Washington.

Last August, France issued a special stamp to commemorate the United States Constitution's 150th birthday. The issue was in the 1-franc-75-cent classification and showed figures representing France and the United States with clasped hands.

The French stamps were received here by Mrs. C. G. Clark, wife of 1071 Roosevelt drive, N. E., who in turn sent them to Mrs. Charles J. Haden, chairman of the Atlanta town committee of Georgia, Colonial Dames of America. They were displayed at the Colonial Dames' meeting last week by Miss Kate Edwards in connection with her report on historic service.

TESTS OF MOTHERS FAVORED IN SURVEY

The vote is another evidence of the intense support the public is giving to the anti-synthetic campaign. Last August a poll found that 87 per cent of all voters would like to see a Wasserman test. Other surveys showed huge majorities in favor of government clinics for syphilis control and compulsory venereal disease tests for all persons seeking marriage licenses.

Vote Uniform by Ages.

The attitude of women toward venereal disease tests in pregnancy varies little by age group or by income levels. The survey found that 95 out of every 100 women in the above average income class favor such tests, a proportion among the average and below average is approximately the same.

$3,000,000 ASKED TO FIGHT DISEASE

Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, has introduced a bill in the senate calling for a federal appropriation of $3,000,000 to help fight venereal disease.

If congress follows the wishes of voters, it will pass the Follette measure. Seventy-nine per cent of persons polled by the Institute in a survey last May favored an appropriation of $3,000,000—was desired by the majority of voters.

Among groups, women below 35 tend to favor the tests more than women above 35, but the difference is small.

The bill in the New York legislature has the endorsement of United States Surgeon General Thomas Parran and other well-known health authorities.

Infection Preventable.

Research scientists estimate that more than 90 per cent of the babies born each year with syphilis contracted from mothers could be made free from infection before birth if the mothers were treated.

Our U. S. Battleships Salute Australia on 150th Birthday

Crowds Swirl in Street; Public Buildings Are Floodlit.

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 25.—Guns of United States cruisers and other foreign warships to thunder salutes in a prelude to the opening tomorrow of Australia's 150th birthday.

The United States cruisers Louisville, Memphis, Trenton and Waukegan steamed between the at sandstone Sydney heads with ships of France, Italy and The Netherlands. Eighteen royal air force planes escorted them.

Australia will commemorate 150 years as a white settlement with celebrations extending for three months.

Crowds in Streets. Day crowds swirled in the streets tonight. Public buildings were floodlit and the Sydney harbor bridge was illuminated.

A water and shore pageant tomorrow will depict the landing on January 26, 1788, of Captain Arthur Phillip with soldiers and 800 convict settlers.

The American Revolution had prevented the deportation of the victims—many of whom were political offenders or children sentenced for slight offenses—across the Atlantic and they were sent to colonize the land "down there."

Despite protests, make-believe victims will take part in tomorrow's pageant in the interests of local accuracy. Although Captain James Cook landed in April, 1770, at Botany Bay, it was not until Captain Phillip arrived that a white settlement was established.

Practice Abandoned. Australia's metropolis and her largest port grew from that early settlement. The practice of flogging convicts from England was abandoned by 1840.

The sesquicentennial celebration will be divided into three periods—historical, from tomorrow to February 12; British empire games and other sports events, February 14-April 1; and a val air show and trade fairs, April 2-25.

Besides the pageant tomorrow there will be the anniversary regatta, held annually in Sydney for more than a century.

Reviews of naval, military and air force units and band contests will follow.

In the second period there will be big game fishing championships and power boat competitions as well as the empire games.

The final period, which concludes on "Anzac day," will be marked by a tattoo and air force pageant as well as the royal show and fairs.

SOUTH IS WARNED OF FOREST ABUSE

Official Cites Need To Restore Depleted Resources.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—F. R. Silcox, forest service chief, said today the south's forest land might become a "graveyard" of potential prosperity if their "exploitation and abuse" by timber seekers continued.

He said a doubling of demand for southern pulpwood by a growing pulp and paper industry and the possibility that more southern yellow pine production might be necessary to meet a national housing shortage emphasized a need for restoring depleted forest resources.

Silcox said the south's future depended upon proper forest land management. "If its power to produce successive forest crops is restored, this forest land can be one of the south's greatest sources of prosperity," he said.

SUSPECT IN $30,000 GEM ROBBERY HELD

Transporting Jewels Charged to Man in Florida.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Justice department agents said today a two-year search for a man wanted in connection with a series of New York jewel robberies, had ended with the arrest of David Pinas, 37, at Hollywood, near here.

Federal agents here held the man, arrested by Hollywood police at the request on charges of transporting $30,000 worth of stolen gems to Washington. They said Pinas, registered at a Hollywood hotel as David Miller, was traced from Havana.

Eula Mae Bennett and Jewell A. Gould were arrested previously at Washington in connection with the stolen jewelry.

J. Edgar Hoover, Federal Bureau of Investigation director, said at Washington Pinas would be returned here to stand trial February 7.

Here's How To Keep Home Fires Burning—But Let's Stop Them in '38

One of the quickest steps to self-electrocution is demonstrated by Mrs. W. E. Whit, of 118 Pine street, N. W., as she snaps out the electric light with one hand while the other hand is still in the water. The result of this action is that the body forms a perfect conductor from the fixture to the plumbing which is grounded.

Mrs. J. W. Meadows, of 114 Pine street, illustrates one of the most common causes of fire via the short circuit. A short circuit is an automatic cutout fuse which causes the lever to fall. In an effort to replace the lever in its former upright position, Mrs. Meadows uses a cord to tie it up, thereby causing the wires to become too hot, causing a fire.

SEADLUND REMOVED TO JAIL IN CHICAGO

Kidnap-Slayer of Ross Tells Clerk He Was Burglar by Occupation.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(AP)—John Henry Seadlund was clapped into a cell in the Cook county jail today—a short distance from the electric chair.

A dozen deputy marshals moved him by auto from the lockup in the federal building in the Loop to an isolated and guarded cell in the basement of the jail on the West Side.

While he was placed in new quarters near the execution chamber, prosecutors perfected plans to bring him to trial within the next two weeks for the kidnap-slaying of Charles S. Ross and reiterated their intention of seeking the death penalty.

In answer to questions from Clerk Charles Bartuska in the receiving room, Seadlund said he had neither a lawyer nor valuables, served 11 days for robbery in Minnesota and was a burglar by occupation.

He told Dr. Frank Mangan he had used narcotics but ended the habit several years ago.

His weight was 137—20 pounds less than when he was arrested on the west coast 11 days ago, according to his calculations.

Meanwhile, District Attorney Michael L. Igoe disclosed that Earl J. Connelley, Federal Bureau of Investigation ace, had followed the trail of ransom bills through race tracks at Miami, New Orleans and Los Angeles. Seadlund was seized at the Santa Anita course.

The 37-year-old man, had recovered more than $47,000 of the $50,000 ransom.

CLAYTON SEWAGE PLANT APPROVED

Is Largest of 5 Constructed by City.

Approval of the new Clayton sewage disposal plant had been granted yesterday by government inspectors after an inspection tour Monday, W. A. Hansell, assistant chief of city construction, announced.

Hansell said the inspectors were well pleased with the new plant, which was recently completed at a cost of approximately $830,000.

The Clayton disposal plant is the largest of five plants constructed by the city with proceeds of the one million-dollar bond issue voted for this purpose. Funds for 45 per cent of the cost were provided by the Public Works Administration.

The new plant is designed to treat 42,000,000 gallons of sewage. Two old plants on Peachtree creek and Proctor creek will be abandoned, it was said.

Hathaway was stricken at his office at the winter quarters of the Ringling circus and died nearly two hours later at a hospital.

His wife was at the bedside. Funeral arrangements had not been made, although circus officials said burial probably would take place here.

MOROLINE FOR SHOW WHITE PETROLEUM JELLY BURNS

LARGE JARS 5¢ AND 10¢

A round gold fish bowl plus a celluloid doll will cause double damage to eight-month-old Donnie Meadows, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Meadows. The prismatic surface of the bowl focuses the sun to a pin point of heat which in turn causes the combustion of the celluloid doll. Children and babies, especially, are innocent causes of fatal fires.

'Stop the Home Fires Burning'

Atlanta Checks Up on Its Hazards

Fire Prevention Drive Sponsored by Red Cross as It Urges Housekeepers and Families To Act To Reduce Accidents and Fatalities in Homes.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Stop the home fire burning! This warning is being sounded this week throughout Atlanta and the United States by Red Cross organizations.

It is pointed out that freak accidents from fire which cause damage and death result in most instances from carelessness. Firearms lead the list. Their careless use takes a heavy toll.

The continued participation of persons in making common home repairs is a very definite fire hazard. It is pointed out that these hazards in Atlanta homes make them unsafe in which to live.

For the fourth consecutive year the Atlanta Red Cross is conducting a drive for prevention of home and farm accidents. The organization has urged a checkup on the various kinds of hazards in Atlanta and Fulton county homes as a means or reducing home fatalities.

Falls and burns cause more deaths than other type of home accidents. It is significant that 81 per cent of all deaths from burns and 74 per cent of all fatal falls happen in the home.

Housekeepers have grown accustomed to hearing of the most common home accidents which result too often in death, but they nevertheless continue to:

(1) Touch an electrical connection with one hand while the other is in water. Result: The body forms a perfect conductor from the fixture to the plumbing which is grounded and there is danger of electrocution.

(2) "Backing" a fuse that has blown out by a coin of tin foil. Result: The fuse is a miniature safety valve as well as a conductor of current. This is one of the most common causes of fire.

(3) Sitting the round gold fish bowl in a sunny window. Result: The prismatic surface focuses the sun to a pin point of heat which can set fire to a hardwood floor.

(4) Wave their hair with celluloid comb "sets" and sitting under a heat-producing lamp. Result: Head and face burns from the combustible combs. So-called horn-rimmed glasses come under the same category.

(5) Wear reading glasses while taking a sun bath. Result: Bad burns as reading glasses magnify the sun's heat.

Among other careless acts which keep the home fires burning are generally found in the kitchen. Flour and cornstarch are highly explosive under certain conditions

ETHERIDGE ENTERS COUNTY PRIMARY

Three Incumbent Judges in Race; C. P. Vaughan Withdraws.

Judge A. L. Etheridge, of Fulton municipal court, qualified yesterday to succeed himself in the primary to be held March 2 by paying the $600 entrance fee to the county Democratic executive committee.

Also qualified for one of the three judgeships to be voted on is Judge Luther Z. Rosser, while the third incumbent, Judge Ralph McClelland, is expected to qualify before the January 31 deadline.

Meanwhile, C. P. Vaughan, five times mayor of Roswell, withdrew as a prospective candidate for county commissioner, retracting a previous statement that he would stay in the race. He said the outcome was too uncertain, since three candidates had already qualified for the post he sought.

Judge Etheridge has been on the municipal bench since 1926, and is a graduate of the Tenth District A. & M. College and the Atlanta Law School.

COMING OR GOING? GEORGIA WILL ASK

Motorists Will Be Stopped in 42 Counties in Next Few Days.

Motorists will be asked "where are you going?" and "where did you come from?" in a survey which will begin in a few days in 42 Georgia counties.

W. L. Miller, chairman of the State Highway Board, announced yesterday a study of the origin and destination of passenger cars, trucks and buses using the state's highways, as part of the survey now being conducted by the board's division of planning.

To Reveal Importance. "The origin-and-destination survey will reveal the relative importance of the various roads and types of roads studied," said Miller, "by showing the degree to which they are used for interstate travel, city-to-city travel, city-to-country, and vice versa.

The studies will be made at 54 "loadometer" stations where for several months trucks and buses have been weighed and other information obtained in another phase of the general survey. The weighing operations will continue. Information will be gained through personal interviews with drivers and questionnaire cards.

Two stations each will be located in Fulton and DeKalb counties.

CULBERTSON SUIT UP IN RENO TODAY

Uncontested Divorce Trial Is Predicted.

RENO, Nev., Jan. 25.—(AP)—The 14-year marriage of Ely Culbertson, bridge expert, and his wife, Josephine, apparently will end in a private, uncontested divorce trial in a Reno district court tomorrow.

George Springmeyer, attorney, announced Mrs. Culbertson would file suit tomorrow, charging mental cruelty. He said no contest was anticipated.

Custody of their two children, Joyce, 10, and Bruce, 9, and property rights have been settled by agreement, Springmeyer said.

Since their separation in New York about six weeks ago, both have expressed their continued friendship and their intention to continue as business and bridge partners. They reportedly earn $100,000 apiece annually from Culbertsons, Inc.

6 Tiny Tugboats Start Leviathan On Last Journey

HOBOKEN, N. J., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Six tiny tugboats sidled up to the liner Leviathan at Pier 4, Hoboken, today, tooted and fumed importantly for an hour or so, and then guided the big ship down the Hudson river and into rain-soaked New York harbor on the last voyage that the decrepit vessel ever will make.

The Leviathan sailed at 3:38 p. m., Atlanta time, for a scrap heap near the Firth of Forth, Scotland, and some day a British shell, screaming over a no man's land of the next war, may bear a chunk of metal from the ship that Germany launched so proudly on the eve of the last World War.

During the war, after the American government had seized it, the Leviathan transported 98,804 soldiers to France and brought back 93,746. Then it failed miserably in private service, partly because prohibition made American ships unattractive to tourists.

The big ship, which Germany built and christened the S. S. Vaterland at a cost of $25,000,000 for two transatlantic voyages, slid into the salty ocean for the first time since September 20, 1934, when the United States Lines gave up as a bad job the task of operating a vessel which was losing $100,000 every time it sailed.

A labor dispute which had delayed the sailing since Sunday was settled at a conference aboard ship this morning. British seamen had balked at accepting wages lower than those paid American sailors signed for the voyage. It was agreed finally that their pay and bonus would be based on the American seamen's wage scale.

ARMY, NAVY ADOPT NEW ACADEMY PLAN

Superintendents of Schools To Be Younger Officers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today the army and navy had adopted, at his suggestion, a policy of assigning younger officers to be superintendents of the military and naval academies.

Mr. Roosevelt made the disclosure in commenting on the assignment of Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, a former presidential aide, to be head of the academy at Annapolis.

Not yet 56, Admiral Brown will succeed Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, who reaches the statutory retirement age of 64 next month. Almost simultaneously, Brigadier General Jay L. Benedict, 56, is slated to take command at West Point in place of Major General W. D. Connor, who retires February 28.

TRAINING TO FIT THE JOB

Few educational programs have held the potentialities of practical value contained in the trade school plan announced by Superintendent Jere A. Wells for the Fulton county schools.

A careful census among the businessmen of the county will be taken within the next few months, to determine what specific occupations reveal the greatest lack of trained workers, what are the possible earnings in those occupations and what special training is needed to fit young men or women for such work.

Following completion of this census, vocational training along the lines indicated will be installed in the school system, together with a placement bureau to find jobs for the properly trained graduates.

Ultimately it is proposed to establish, in addition to the vocational training opportunities in the present schools, a trade school where advanced instruction in business courses and skilled trades may be given. This school will be available not only to the boys and girls of school age, but also for part-time training of older people who want to increase their knowledge of their own special types of work.

Such a program visions a system of education that comes close to filling the ideal of all sincere educators. That is, to best fit the student for life. Combined with general teaching and character development, it approaches the problems of the social organization from the most intelligent standpoint. It seeks to find the proper niche in the economic system best fitted to each student and then to prepare that individual to fill that niche with finest results, both for himself and for the system as a whole.

Such a program will contribute materially toward solution of the national crime problem and will aid juvenile court authorities and other workers with youth in providing opportunity, not only for the average individual, but for the one who without such guidance, help and placement would become a social problem for the courts and the prisons.

It will, in short, salvage manhood and womanhood before the impairment of character and of life has begun. Students of delinquency and crime have continually pointed to the extreme youth of most criminals today. Schools which provide legitimate channels for the exercise of youthful interest, youthful enthusiasm and the abounding energy of young people, will do more to reduce crime, by diverting this energy into useful channels, than can be accomplished by all the prisons and courts of the land.

WHEN DELAY IS PROFITABLE

Mayor Hartsfield has requested the heads of all departments of the city government to wait until May before purchasing new equipment and supplies, except in those cases where the need for the material is really urgent.

The mayor points out that tax revenues will begin to come into the city treasury in May, making it possible to pay cash for all purchases made afterwards. If every department rushes into the market now, it will be necessary to borrow funds with which to meet the bills.

The added expense entailed is evident. Either interest must be paid on the borrowed money, or the city must lose a 2 per cent discount it could get by paying its bills in cash, without asking time credits.

The city today is operating, for the first time in years, on a cash basis. There is no reason why intelligent planning of purchases, with postponement of all possible expenses until after the new tax money comes in, should not keep the city on that basis. Appropriations in the budget have been made with a view to purchases for cash, and it is up to the department heads to co-operate with the mayor and with city council to keep the city on the happy financial footing it now enjoys.

There are, of course, some things which must be bought at once. But the great bulk of the new equipment need not be acquired until May or later and it will be in the best interest of all to postpone such buying to as late a date as possible.

A survey of municipalities shows many cities, now in need, have borrowed to their limit. It's tough, when you can't live within your debts.

PASS THE BURGIN BILL

The so-called Burgin "home rule bill" is still awaiting action by the house of representatives of the Georgia legislature. If this measure, one of the most important proposed in recent years, is once again permitted to die in a committee pigeonhole, the assembly, regardless of other accomplishments, will have failed in an outstanding opportunity to benefit the state.

For years now, the story of the Burgin bill has been monotonously disappointing. It has been introduced at every session of the legislature and, almost without exception, passed by one house or the other. When the senate has voted for it, the house has never brought it to a vote and when the house has given its approval, the bill has been permitted to die in the list of senate "unfinished business." This time it has been passed by the senate and now is waiting to be placed on the house calendar.

The measure would, if enacted, relieve future legislatures of the heavy burden of "local bills." These, as a matter of simple intelligence, should not come to the assembly at all. They are measures affecting only one county. They are introduced by the representatives of that county and are automatically passed, ground through the legislative hopper, with all other members casting "courtesy votes" of approval, but in total ignorance of the contents or purposes of the bills.

It is easy for any special interests in any county, or for a "political ring" in the county government, to thus put through any program they desire. Afterwards objectors in the affected county are effectively barred from protest when they are told, "Well, that's what the legislature decided!"

If these local bills were taken from the legislative list and left for decision, as they should be, by the local authorities and the citizens affected, the assembly would be relieved of a tremendous burden of unnecessary work, with time thus provided for better understanding and freer discussion of the important problems of state-wide interest.

There are few measures of greater potential value to state economy, to better local government and to the welfare of all citizens, than the Burgin bill. The house should act on it as quickly as possible.

MAPPING A SALES CAMPAIGN

When the Atlanta Convention and Visitors' Bureau launches at its annual banquet to-night a three-year campaign to sell this city to the nation as a center of tourist attraction and as a site for important conventions, it will undertake a movement which contains possibilities of far-reaching benefit to Atlanta.

Final completion of the new city auditorium, scheduled for the early summer, will give Atlanta a public gathering place large enough to provide for all save a few of the largest conventions. Gatherings which bring together 6,000 or 7,000 delegates may comfortably be accommodated and there will be a determined drive to attract such conventions here.

At the same time the bureau is not overlooking the fact that the constant stream of individual tourists is at least equally important as the occasional coming of a great crowd. Every person who visits Atlanta not only spends money here but, if properly treated, becomes a voluntary salesman for the advantages of this city among his own neighbors and friends.

From a campaign such as that proposed the ancient fame of the "Atlanta Spirit" may arise once more and make the entire nation "Atlanta conscious."

TOMORROW ON THE FARM

(From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)
The voice of science is speaking to the farmer, partly in terms of prophecy, but also in the accents of accomplished facts.

Plastics from cotton and the soybean already supplanted hard rubber or metal in automobile steering wheels, gear-shift levers, interior fittings. The "vegetable car," recently predicted by Henry Ford, is not here yet, but it will presently be rolling off the assembly lines.

Cellulose plastics, plus films and lacquers, used the produce of 2,100,000 acres of cotton land in 1935. Rayon and cellophane accounted for more than 6,500,000 acres of cotton and 22,000 acres of timber. A du Pont executive, C. M. A. Stine, is authority for those figures.

Carl M. Fritzsche, managing director of the Farm Chemurgic Council, estimated in 1936 that, within 10 years, 5,000,000 acres of new cultivation would be required to supply the demands of the plastic industry for farm products.

The paint and varnish industry has long been importing tung oil from the Orient. The tangy tree, native to China, is now being grown successfully in the United States. A million-acre plant is visualized as the basis for a business of $100,000,000 a year.

Can newsprint be made from southern pine? The product has been unsatisfactory to newspaper publishers on two counts—texture and color. Research is meeting those objections. Anyhow, the investment in pulp mills now totals $137,000,000. Power alcohol is here. Mixed with gasoline, it makes a more effective motor fuel, it is claimed. A plant is now in operation in Atchison, Kan. The product is on sale in five midwestern states. Nebraska exempts alcohol in the mixture from the state gasoline tax. The probable area of cultivation is placed at 21,000,000 acres.

A further word about the soybean. Brought to this country more than a century ago, it was, for a long time, an exotic. It has been "naturalized." It is more than paying its way. Dr. W. L. Burlison, of the University of Illinois, says that within 20 years the soybean will equal the corn crop in value.

Tomorrow, it may well be, will spread a sumptuous table for the farmer in the dell.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

ICC-BUDGET BUREAU PLAN WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A White House effort to make the Interstate Commerce Commission clear all communications with congress through the Budget Bureau—and therefore through the President—has recently failed. The effort was important because it showed the persistence of the presidential distaste for the independence of the independent agencies.

The effort began some time ago, after the government reorganization bill, which, in its first form, would have made all independent agencies appanages of the White House, had bogged soggily down. Thereupon, a general White House order was issued through Budget Director Daniel W. Bell, commanding that all recommendations to congress from agencies both independent and dependent, be submitted in advance to the bureau of the budget.

The commissioners of the ICC, some of whom had been openly fighting the reorganization bill, considered the order and refused to comply. The next move came when James Roosevelt, acting for his father, asked them to change their minds, "as a courtesy to the President." Faced with such a plea, the commissioners did agree to submit recommendations about which there was no great hurry, but retained their independence by adding the proviso that they must be allowed to judge the need for haste.

To this odd little incident, which is said to have included something of a row between the President and one of the commissioners, may probably be traced the President's attack on the ICC at the business advisory council meeting. The ICC's independence was what he complained of.

CROMWELL'S WINTER PALACE James H. R. Cromwell must be allowed to be one of the most original thinkers in American politics. The fortunate husband of Doris Duke, the richest girl in the world, recently caused some stir by telling the house ways and means committee that the government ought to stop taxing the rich and raise its revenue by a general sales tax.

Before that he interested a senate committee with the suggestion that the best shot in the arm for American industry would be "negative interest"—by which the government would lend money to industries, companies, and then pay the companies a handsome interest rate on the money they borrowed. But Mr. Cromwell's most surprising notion will always remain the little idea he had for a Palm Beach house for his wife and himself.

He got the idea when Mrs. Cromwell and he visited the Taj Mahal during their wedding trip. It struck him as distinctly charming, and just the right model for a cosy little villa by the southern sea. A letter was actually written to Palm Beach Architect Maurice Fazio, requesting that plans be drawn for a house exactly reproducing the exterior of the Taj Mahal.

The request was something of an architectural puzzle, since the Taj Mahal is close on to 250 feet high at the dome, and has pierced marble grilles for windows. Yet the scheme might have gone through if some wicked fellows had not made fun. One joke arose from the fact that the letter, not written by Mr. Cromwell, but by a member of his wife's family—suggested that the garage ought to be in the same style as the house. Someone remarked that he supposed the Cromwells would call it their "Garaj Mahal."

LEFT-WING EMPLOYMENT AGENCY The left-wing White House advisers run a sort of employment agency and personnel office for the government, which is useful to them because it permits them to put their own men in key positions. Two recent placements of some importance have been that of James H. Rowe Jr., as assistant to James Roosevelt, and that of Edward H. Foley Jr., as assistant general counsel of the treasury in charge of procurement. Rowe's appointment was a surprise because he is a conservative. Joseph L. Sheehan, the protégé of the conservative Joseph P. Kennedy.

Foley was put in because the left-wingers sympathize with U. S. Housing Administrator Nathan Straus in his life and death struggle with power-hungry Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes. Foley, a former PWA counsel who couldn't get along with Ickes, will be useful to Straus because all government building bills go through the treasury procurement section.

Rowe, who is something of a left-winger himself, is the last of the long and distinguished line of secretaries to Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. Incidentally, the Holmes secretaries have an organization of their own, which includes such different-thinking but powerful men as Thomas G. Corcoran, most important left-winger in Washington, and the deeply conservative president of the National Federal Reserve Bank, Charles H. Hays. During the year Rowe served him, he read French novels and detective stories almost exclusively, although his last book was Thornton Wilder's "Heaven Is My Destination." To the end, Holmes still maintained his habit of commenting on a book when he was done with it. These comments have also been preserved.

HOMER AT THE BAR Another indication that Attorney General Homer S. Cummings will soon leave the Justice Department is his application for membership in the bar association of the District of Columbia. The application, endorsed by District Bar Association Members U. S. Carus, Breckinridge Long, and Henry A. Schweinhaut, has yet to be acted on, but of course, will be approved.

There is a rumor going around that, when and if the attorney general does resign, he will go into the exceedingly prosperous Washington office of his great crony, the Montana lawyer-lobbyist, J. Bruce Kremer. But more probably he wants a membership in the District bar only because he plans to be the capital man of his country.

SILHOUETTES

This Is Funny,
Even If Propaganda.

The story to follow was culled from a sheet put out at Hong Kong by a self-styled anti-Japanese intent. The material in its columns is all highly laudatory of the Chinese and it tells of fearful things attributed to Japanese invaders.

And far be it from Silhouettes to become a channel for propaganda on either side in a war in which thousands of miles away. (Although, confidentially, all our friends in the war area are utterly pro-Chinese in their sentiments.)

However, to the story. It happened, the communication says, at Soochow. The Chinese army of defense had fallen back, leaving only a rearguard to harass the Japanese and to report on the enemy movements. A young Chinese officer was in command of a unit of this rearguard.

He ordered his 24 troops to halt and rest at a large country house, deserted by its owner. Only a few valuable had been removed from the place, showing the flight of the occupants had been hurried.

In the courtyard was a fine, tiled swimming pool, with the water heated by pipes from a furnace. The Chinese posted sentries and, stripping off their clothes, enjoyed that almost unheard-of war luxury, a good bath. But the officer soon realized that, if the Japanese arrived suddenly, he and his troops would be caught at a disadvantage. He also conceived an idea.

Withdraw Into Fields. So the Chinese again donned their clothes and withdrew into the near-by fields, hiding there. An hour later two lorry loads of Japanese troops arrived on the scene. They stopped and investigated the house. A corpulent major and an extra skinny lieutenant were in command. They posted sentries around the walls and disappeared inside the house.

The Chinese then, by dint of much crawling, struck down, gagged and bound the four Japanese sentries. Then, peeping over the courtyard wall, they saw 40 Japanese infantry, all completely nude, in and around the pool. The corpulent major was reclining on a bench, while the lieutenant massaged him.

All the clothes, and weapons, were piled up near the rear door of the house with a lone sentry guarding them.

The Chinese started to scramble over the wall at the point nearest to the clothes and weapons, but the sentry heard them and they had to shoot the man. Then the Chinese came over in a body and the naked Japanese, cut off from their weapons, had to surrender.

To Make Them "Lose Face." The young Chinese officer then had a large quantity of women's clothes, left in the house, brought out and the Japanese were ordered to put them on.

The whole party then marched to the main headquarters of the Chinese rearguard and, according to the sheets from which the yarn is taken, "the sight of 40 Japanese soldiers arrayed in female attire was a gruesome and the marching weary Chinese troops."

That's making the enemy lose face, hey!

Related By Marriage—The story is told of an official whose duty called him to regular visits at the state hospital for the insane. He thus grew to know, in some degree, many of the inmates.

One poor fellow told this visitor, when he first talked with him, that he was Napoleon Bonaparte. The next time they met, the patient explained that he was George Washington.

"Well," said the visiting official, "the last time I was here you were Napoleon Bonaparte. How come the change?"

"Oh," replied the other, "that was by my first wife."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Scions OF NEW YORK, Jan. 25. Idle Rich Due to a queer loop in the thinking of a people who have always regarded poverty as a handicap, there is a disposition nowadays to excuse the errors of the scions and scionesses of the idle rich on the ground that wealth, too, is detrimental to character and an obstacle to individual achievement.

This argument was advanced in all seriousness in a court case in Oklahoma a few years ago on behalf of a spoiled young man accused of a serious sin. It was contended that because he had never had to do chores in his spare time and had always had pocket money and that his parents had never had a chance and should be judged as leniently as though he had been born in the most degraded poverty and raised without a proper appreciation of the difference between right and wrong.

The same apology is frequently offered for that element of young bar flies of both sexes who make up the children's auxiliary of the night club society of New York and Palm Beach.

Social workers insist that when families are disrupted by poverty and drink the children's chances in life are seriously impaired and the mother or woman who rises from such environment to a position of leadership and wealth in the community is recognized, briefly, at least, as a remarkable person and saluted with a nice biographical piece in some magazine. Before long, to be sure, the same person may be accused of having forgot his or her difficult beginning and charged with trampling on the necks of the masses on the way up the slope. It is difficult to please.

Penthouse According to the reasoning which regards And Slums poverty, squalor and drunkenness in the family circle as a handicap to the young, the children of the rich would appear to be ideally situated and without excuse for failure. But it cannot be denied that in many cases the home life of the rich has points in common with that of the very poor. There is likewise to be liquor trouble in the penthouse as well as in the cold water tenement of the slum, the only difference being in the quality of the grog.

Many rich children are neglected, too, and it is hardly necessary to call names to remind anyone who reads the papers of families in which both the father and mother have gone romancing and that the scions and scionesses are an example which, in the case of the poor family, would be regarded as most immoral. This example is the worse because it usually occurs about the time of life when the scions and scionesses are beginning to keep track of the score, but the social worker would not think of intruding to mend things for the sake of the bairns. They probably are away at school, anyway, or might be playing about in Europe.

Horrible It is often said of one Example of the most profligate of the days that he was all right as long as his father lived and kept him at work for comparatively small wages. His raising had been good, but when he got his inheritance he put his affairs in the hands of a responsible house so as to have no distracting cares and set himself to the work of becoming a bum. In this he has achieved a famous success, but he gets no credit for that, and is generally regarded as a horrible example of the evil effects of wealth on a young man.

A famous young woman of great riches is held blameless for the condition of the people to whom she owes her wealth on the ground that she never had a chance to take a job herself, even as an amateur, and doesn't know, except, in the vaguest way, that people work.

And while efforts are made to improve the condition of the poor and underprivileged youth so that they may not become bums or criminals, efforts are made also in some of the schools to which rich men send their young to simulate the plainness of the freshwater school in which the students work their way by pressing pants and serving as waiters and dishwashers.

Individuals who have "risen above" their environment to become useful, one-wife citizens, a puzzling twist indeed, suggesting that the overprivileged also have legitimate claim on the nation's personal management, solicitude and individual service lest they come to no good end.

Gold Find. Ninety years ago gold was found at Sutter's Fort by James W. Marshall. It was the event that started the tide of immigration pouring over the whole west. Yet gold had already been discovered in California six years previously at San Francisco rancho, and it has been mined in eastern states for more than 50 years. Sutter, a rich man when the find was made on his land, became a pauper afterward.

The Spoiled Child Remains Spoiled Till Hard Knocks Teach It Respect for Rules

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

"I have helped at least a dozen men out of trouble," said a young business man, "by lending them money I needed myself. I couldn't afford to lose; and though they seemed decent fellows and stood well in the community, not one in the lot has ever paid me a cent. Some of them even dislike me, as though I had wronged them. People aren't as honest as they used to be."

That experience, which is not uncommon, is enough to so one's faith in humanity, but it doesn't justify such a conclusion. The ungrateful borrower's dislike for his benefactor is an effort to justify himself. His conscience condemns him for wronging his friend, and he seeks to excuse himself by regarding the friend an enemy.

Whatever the behavior of such borrowers, their failure to repay is no indication that other people are dishonest. They are typical of our times, but typical only of their class.

They were not poor illiterates in desperate circumstances, but seemingly "decent" fellows who stood well in the community.

You know the type, for every town has them—well dressed, care-free, sure of themselves; spending money carelessly; gambled a little; always somehow finding money enough to pay for the own amusement but for little else.

Their fault is chiefly their failure to grow up. They still have the mental attitude of children. They have not yet developed sense of duty or obligation or responsibility. They do not breathe their promises, forget their obligations and evade their debts conscious and deliberate dishonesty, but only because these matters do not seem important.

They pay no taxes; contribute to no church or organized charity carry no insurance; have no savings account. And since they are blissfully free of anxiety concerning their own affairs, it would be strange indeed if they inconvenienced themselves about such a small matter as a friend's money. If they can't save money for a future emergency, why expect them to save it for an emergency that has passed?

Lending them money is a weakness and a fault, for they never will learn that life isn't all play till they taste its bitterness, as they have no occasion to learn while their rightful share of the bitterness is so easily passed on to soft-hearted friends who cannot say no.

And if one who helps a thief thereby becomes an accessory, he also bears the guilt when he encourages a dead-beat.

WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Beginning Or End?

NEW YORK—Two great observers of the world situation, the "Temps" newspaper of Paris and the Osservatore Romano, which is the Vatican's official mouthpiece, ask this anguishing question: Do we stand before a new pre-war period or is there still chance of a reconciliation? But they do not give an answer to this question, mainly, I think, because it is patent to everybody that we are moving towards some great climax which may well be a cataclysm as the world has not yet seen.

The after-war period is finished. That is to say the system of Versailles which included the League of Nations and the doctrine of collective security is no longer practicable as an instrument of Franco-British policy. Secondly, the system of Washington, the agreement in the question of Asia, has also gone by the board. In both centers of world-affairs. Europe and the Pacific, new arrangements have become necessary. But because the problems of the Far East are more pressing and of far greater importance than those of Europe, a permanent solution will take at least a century to materialize. We are at the beginning of an area of transition which, like other eras of transition will take a long time to run before the next form of society emerges. What that form of society will be remains in the lap of the gods. But that there is today a recognition of the need of a society international in scope of that there is no doubt. Most of the trouble in the world may be traced to a resistance against the break-through of the new order.

British Prestige At Stake. England, which some say has abdicated her role of arbiter, is deeply conscious of the importance of events in China. The British Empire's whole prestige not only in that part of Asia but in the entire colored world, is at stake. Therefore, England is returning to its old and tried policy: Come to an arrangement in Europe, because that alone will give her a free hand in her own sphere of interest, the Empire.

Only by keeping that in mind can the course of events in Europe be understood: The mission of Halifax to Berlin was the start of an attempt to come to an understanding at once with Berlin. Europe must be pacified first. Only then will forces become available for a settlement of Asiatic affairs. The second move was to have the French foreign minister go around Europe with a new message: The French system of alliances is not directed against Germany. Prague was even urged by M. Delbos to give the German minority in Czechoslovakia a new and more favorable status. Delbos purposely omitted Moscow from his round-trip, in order to impress Germany that France's ties with the Soviet Union are so firm as they used to be. The intimate collaboration of France and Britain aims at one thing: Delay an expansion in Europe by all means, in order that no strength might be wasted that might later prove necessary in the settlement of Eastern affairs. What we expect to see therefore in the future is concessions to Germany and concessions to Italy, although in a lesser degree. In the meantime, England builds a new line, and new strength for the conflict in the Pacific.

Talmudic Tales By DAVID MORANTZ.

(Based upon the ancient legends and philosophy found in the Talmud and for the Jewish people. From the time David Morantz will also analyze the Talmudic tales, also asked on the religion, customs, mores, institutions, etc., of the Jews.)

QUESTIONS I'VE BEEN ASKED What is the purpose of the Jewish arbitration court in New York? You probably refer to the Jewish Court of Arbitration, Inc., located at 395 Broadway, New York City. Its purpose is to settle, arbitrate and conciliate differences between Jews, Jewish societies, lodges, synagogues and fraternal organizations without resort to civil courts. It was organized in 1920.

Then there is also the Jewish Conciliation Court of America, Inc., with office at 225 Broadway, New York City, the purpose of which is the adjustment of disputes between Jews. It was organized in 1930.

Both of these organizations have done a splendid work in bringing about amicable settlements of disputes between Jewish and Jewish organizations thereby saving the parties involved, as well as the state, the expense of long legal contests and relieving the congestion of the civil courts to marked degree.

What is the meaning of the name "Annette"? It is from the Hebrew and is a variant of "Anne" which means "grace."

Who wrote "The City Without Jews"? Migo Bettauer.

What is Hebrew Union College and when was it organized? It is located in Cincinnati, Ohio and was organized in 1875.

Star U. S. Witness 'Forgets' $2,500,000 Swindle Trial

Justice Willis Van Devanter Calls Reversal 'Embarassing'

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(P)—John Moore, a voluble government witness at two previous trials of men accused of operating a $2,500,000 swindle ring in Reno, Nev., swore today much of his former testimony was false.

Moore's negative answers, when questioned about any connection with the swindle, might have had with the defendants, nonplussed government attorneys seeking conviction of William J. Graham, James C. McLean, Boies Heed, Thomas W. McLean and Allen Comer, all charged with mail fraud and conspiracy. The witness' refusal to answer questions satisfactorily to Assistant United States Attorney William Power Maloney caused the prosecutor to remark that he had been "taken by surprise."

Van Devanter on Bench.

"I know how embarrassing this situation must be to you," said Justice Willis Van Devanter, retired United States supreme court justice presiding, who took a hand in the questioning himself.

Moore, a Canadian, pleaded guilty in 1934 to mail fraud charges and served four years and nine months in prison. He readily admitted today he had "worked" the swindle west as a confidence game expert and in two cases described detail his activities.

Efforts of government attorneys pin him down as to the final handling of financial transactions regarding his admitted swindles in Reno brought either negative or equivocal replies.

Moore said he had served terms in Leavenworth, Kan., and the United States prison farm at Milan, Mich., in New Jersey, and in solitary confinement in Queens county prison, New York.

$140,000 Swindle.

His operations, he said, began in 1928 in Vancouver. He testified he had swindled Mr. and Mrs. F. Bray, of Guernsey, Saskatchewan, Canada, and later John H. Callahan, Rochester, N. Y., hotel man, and Mrs. Callahan, of $140,000.

"Do you know William J. Graham and Mr. McKay?" Maloney asked Moore.

"I have seen them in this courtroom," Moore replied, "in 1934 and 1935."

"When did you first meet Mr. Graham?"

"I never met him personally," Moore said.

Referring to Moore's testimony at two previous trials, both of which resulted in jury disagreements, Maloney read excerpts saying Moore had turned money over to Graham in connection with a $18,000 race track swindle.

"I don't remember," Moore testified Graham received a 15 per cent cut.

"Do you remember testifying to that effect?" Maloney asked.

"I don't remember, but if I did testify that way it was false," Moore answered.

Maloney asked him about testimony that he had received a 15 per cent deduction had been made "in an alleged deal the government described as the Muckenheim swindle."

"It was false and I was offered executive clemency," said Moore. He denied several times any recollection of such a deal, in which the government claims Peter Muckenheim, an Alberta farmer, was swindled of $18,000.

Atlanta Resident For 14 Years Says Menthomulsion Is His Best Friend.

Everybody that has business in the shopping center where Bankhead Avenue meets Marietta Street knows Menthomulsion, and when he recently had to be away from his business for several days at a time many of his friends made inquiries.

When interviewed on New Year's Day, he had the following to say: "Several months ago I was unfortunate enough to contract a bad case of flu which seemed to settle in my chest and I had a bad case of congestion and a terrible cough. For six weeks this terrible cough continued and I tried everything I had ever heard of and was unable to get any relief.

"A dentist friend of mine suggested that I try Menthomulsion. The first dose of Menthomulsion convinced me that I had found what I needed. I knew that a good cough medicine should break up the phlegm in your throat and chest, and Menthomulsion sure does do that.

"Before I had taken this first bottle of Menthomulsion I was completely relieved. I think Menthomulsion is the best and most economical cough medicine on the market and is certainly worth more than the 75c I paid for it."—(adv.)

RALPH MCGILL GIVES VIEWS ON DENMARK

Columbus was born. Here was a nation that conquered England and all North Europe. And now we are little Denmark."

We walked back to his father's farm house; to the warm rooms and the smell of food cooking and of peat and wood fires. The years blew away. It was modern Denmark, the oldest kingdom on the earth. And this first article is a sort of introduction for others that will follow.

It is easy to go to the statistics. They show that this little country has a total area of 16,570 square miles.

Georgia has 58,725 miles. The state of Tennessee has 41,687.

Kentucky owns 40,181. Alabama includes 51,279.

DENMARK'S POPULATION

Denmark's population is 3,737,000. Georgia has almost 3,000,000. Other southern agricultural states have more than 1,000,000. New York city has more than 7,000,000 people, almost twice as many as Denmark.

Denmark is the country of green fields, of farms, of white-washed stone farm houses, of beech forests. It really is made up of islands, three large ones and the peninsular of Jutland which comes up north from Germany. That and 475 other islands make up Denmark.

Statistics are easy. What of the people? For many weeks now I have been going with Danish people—to visit factories, farms, universities, schools, dairies. I have gone into their homes and talked with university professors, with farmers, with students, with members of the state department, with hotel people, with folk school students and teachers. I have not wanted to be just a visitor.

Through the kindness of the Danes I have sat in classes at the folk schools, stayed in their dormitories, eaten meals with the students and had tea with the faculties. I have eaten meals at farming tables in small villages, have watched pigs converted into bacon, butter emerge from the milk cheese from the milk. I have been in the large offices of huge wholesale co-operatives and had dinner with the managers of co-operative stores in villages with not more than 600 inhabitants.

THERE ARE NO BEGGARS SEEN IN DENMARK

The farmer is used to quotas. He made them himself. He controls the government. Yet he is the most independent farmer I have ever seen. There are no beggars. There are no inadequately housed people and no inadequately clothed people. Someone said, years ago, that in Denmark there were few with too much and few with too little. That almost literally is true. The government is called a Democratic-Socialist government.

Yet Mr. Norman Thomas would not recognize it as his party. It is essentially democratic. The individual is the unit of government. Co-operatives are most successful here in the handling of foods. It's businessmen are split. Perhaps a majority of them would prefer the conservative party in power. Yet all admit there would be no change in the basic form of democratic government with all its social legislation.

DENMARK HAS ITS PROBLEMS ALSO

There are some problems. There is the problem of saturation. It is a small country. Its population is growing. It has some unemployed. It cares for them. Most of them are in schools. There is private business and the co-operatives. Private business grumbles and attempts to fight the co-operatives. The co-operatives are growing in strength each year because they sell the same things for less. There are problems.

There is the problem of exports and imports. Denmark, having no resources of iron and minerals, must import. Denmark, changing her entire theory of agriculture within 70 years, imports feed-stuff. (The south, the cotton south, should be selling lots of cottonseed oil cake here. And isn't it imports fruits, olives. This small country is England's third largest customer. It is almost incredible. Yet Denmark is literally the third best customer England has. There is a system of quotas.

Living is cheap in Denmark. Good food is cheap. Good housing is cheap. Good clothing is cheap. But luxuries—silk, fur, expensive clothing—they all cost money.

Those are some of the items to be treated with in articles to follow.

DENMARK'S TENANCY IS ONLY 7 PER CENT

There is less than 7 per cent tenancy in Denmark, when less than 100 years ago there were only a few farm owners. The land in Denmark was never rich. Only the lush island of Funen had rich soil. Yet today Denmark has lost no acres of land through erosion and abuses. It has added thousands of acres. It has reclaimed sea land which would not be looked at in the United States.

It got the land back to the farmers. It has, through education and the unique folk high schools, kept people on the farm. It has dignified farm labor and all labor. It has made its people contented, on farms and in schools and in shops.

It has maintained an intensely democratic government, while below it Germany is ruled by a strong man. Denmark and the other Scandinavian countries have clung to democracy with a tenacious

Q. Are Christians in these days supposed to speak in tongues that nobody can understand? I am associated with a group of people who from time to time speak in tongues which are certainly unknown to me, and when I have asked them whether they understood what they were saying, their answer was, No.

A. You will find the subject of speaking with tongues fully discussed in the 14th chapter of 1 Corinthians. Please notice as you read it that the word, "unknown," always appears in italics, which indicates that it is a supplied word and is not in the original text. There was no such thing as speaking in unknown tongues, that is, in tongues which nobody knew. In the early church Christians were sometimes enabled to speak in languages which they had not learned, but even this was forbidden, unless somebody present was able to interpret what was said. In the 28th verse it says, "If there be no interpreter, let him keep silence in the church; and let him speak to himself, and to God." In the 18th verse Paul says, "I thank my God, I speak with tongues more than ye all," but the evident meaning there is, that Paul was able to speak in more languages than they; but even so, he declares in the 19th verse that in the church he would rather speak five words with his understanding, that by his voice he might teach others also, than ten thousand words in a tongue. This was one of the spectacular gifts which were gradually withdrawn as the canon of Scripture neared its completion, and when the Bible was fully made up, these sign-gifts, in a large measure, departed from the church. Today we are called upon to walk by faith rather than by sight.

GREAT ORATORS.

On the walls of Sanders theater at Harvard University are the busts of seven orators: Demosthenes, Cicero, Chrysostom, Bossuet, Pitt, Burke and Webster. The selection of these men occasioned no little debate, many urging the names of other great orators as equally worthy of recognition.

Were such a list of modern orators made, who would be selected? Who would you select? How many would be chosen from America? What would determine your selection of men in the field of oratory?

It may be remembered that none of the above men ever spoke indirectly to their audiences. Radio and telephone and television had not arrived. They stood before their audiences and held them in the grip and grasp of their powerful personalities and their eloquent appeal.

It is sometimes suggested that among the so-called great orators of modern times are men who rarely speak directly to their audiences, but for the most part are heard only over radio, and the argument is made that it takes a greater orator to hold an unseen audience. There is a difference of opinion on this question, and perhaps rightly so. Many of the radio orators have special advantages because of the positions they fill. People are not merely attracted by what they are saying, but because of their position and influence which they wield because of their position.

Still again, we often hear it urged that the day of great oratory has passed—that there will be no more Websters and Calhouns and Patrick Henrys—that no such burning issues prevail—that people are weary of orators, etc., etc.

Maybe so, but I dare say that when the full weight of such argument is in and you are tempted to agree with it and then you happen upon some man or woman, young or old, whose lips have been touched with a coal of fire from off the altar of some great conviction, you will forget all the argument about the days of oratory having passed and you will again be grateful that God has endowed men and women with the gift of oratory.

If you ask me to start my list of seven great orators, I would begin with George W. Truett, William E. Borah, Warren A. Candler, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Evangeline Booth—but I had better not try to finish the list at one time.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. Caradad Vardell, still a schoolgirl in pigtails when Terry Cantine's father sent him from the cow country to a military school in the south in the hope that the discipline there would accomplish what he himself had been unable to achieve, sells Farrabow, with its rambling ranch house, less than a year after her father's death. Dad, as the cowhands and finally everybody else called her "for short," decides she needs a change of scene as her mother had died previously, and she starts for Chicago. At Oklahoma City, she takes a chance on wiring Terry, at the last address she has. Terry, tall, handsome, lean and tanned, hardly knows the little, freckled but decidedly attractive girl who alights from the last Pullman and smiles at him through tinted spectacles. They drop into the railway station restaurant for breakfast and Terry learns for the first time of John Vardell's death and of Dad's sale of Farrabow through Judge Pomphrey, her mother's old friend. She declines a cigarette over her coffee and Terry begins to have a feeling of uneasiness over entertaining the visitor. When he suggests she may want to stop at the Y, she asks, "Do I really look that way?" Terry is surprised when she mentions the swanky Rushmore but when he takes her there a reservation has been made by wire for the judge. She has dinner with Terry. The next day Gerta Greenway phones her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XII. Arrived at their social goal, everything assumed the guise of a colorful, flower-scented maze for the girl from Oklahoma. She had her first view of a butler in the flesh. There was a dressing room with a smart maid in attendance, a trip with Terry through what seemed miles of richly furnished corridors and rooms to an open door that emitted a gale of voices and laughter. With plump Mr. Tankersley, more droll than ever in a dinner jacket, rolling out from a chattering group with a shrill whoop of: "Brand me a maverick, if there isn't my gal Annie!" Promptly he put his arm about her waist and propelled her forward, crying out that the guest of honor had arrived. Caradad sent an appealing glance at Terry, who smiled encouragingly, then dropped back to play the part of a nonchalant rear guard. Introductions began. A bizarre procedure as managed by the lurching little host, forgetting as he did—by accident or design—Caradad's last name. However, he extended the same informality to the entire group of men and women, reciting their given names so glibly that Caradad found herself thinking that all of them had been properly invited. Until she found her guide staring up with owlish perplexity into the face of a lanky, red-headed youth who held a partly filled glass in his hand. "I don't seem to know you," Mr. Tankersley observed mildly, "but I dare say it's all right. This is Annie Oakley, Third, and she's powerful quick on the draw. Maybe you'd better stick around on the outside."

"That's all right," said the Auburn-haired one easily. "I'm Daniel Boone." Then to Caradad, with a serious air, "I'll be in the bar, if you need any help."

He must be a "crasher," she told herself.

At that same moment a hand was laid gently on her arm and she heard a familiar voice. "Nick, you sweet idiot, you've tortured this poor child enough. Give her to me."

Caradad turned and found herself looking into the friendly dark eyes of Gerta Greenway.

"I'm so sorry I couldn't come to your rescue sooner," Mrs. Greenway apologized laughingly. She pulled Caradad's arm through hers with a protective gesture, as Nick turned away with a resigned shrug of his fat shoulders.

"Thank you," the girl returned gratefully. "I'm afraid that I haven't made much progress in finding out who all these people are."

"Of course you haven't. It's a frightfully stupid thing to be presented to a group of perfect strangers—as Nick does it. But it's quite all right. I'll start you in circulation and you won't have any trouble. Just make yourself perfectly at home."

Mrs. Greenway proved as good as her word, drawing Caradad to the nearest group of guests and introducing her all over again as Miss Vardell, a girl from Terry's home and an old friend of his family. She also explained that Miss Vardell had spent all her life on a cattle ranch and that was the reason Nick had been so absurd in calling her Annie Oakley. Caradad wished that Mrs. Greenway had not felt it necessary to dilate to such an extent upon that phase, for the other guests stared at her as if she were an object of curiosity. And she had rather prided herself on the fact that she looked like a very modern young woman this evening, no different from any other city dweller.

Perhaps she did appear different after all. Nearly all these other women were in gay colors and wearing jewelry. Their faces paler, their hair, brows plucked, collars extreme, mouths and fingernails colored brilliantly. Most of them were smoking. And drinking. Chattering volubly. The stranger grew more and more ill at ease. These men and women were perfectly polite to her, asked her perfunctory questions about her visit or good-natured ones regarding the west and cowboys. Then, invariably, they turned the conversation to items of local interest, matters that left her silent and wearing an expression of interested attention that soon began to feel like a stiff mask.

When the butler paused with a tray of glasses—an early round—Caradad accepted a drink rather than make herself more conspicuous by a refusal. She didn't care for it, but an occasional sip gave her an air of joining in with the others and employment for her hands.

Terry wasn't helping her much. He did stroll over once to see if she were getting along all right, but someone claimed his attention almost at once. Caradad found herself watching him with admiration, not unmixed with envy. He was the handsomest man in the room, and he moved about with a graceful, leisurely air, perfectly at ease. She noticed that he drank with the others but maintained his quiet composure always. It was easy to see that he was popular with both women and men—also easy to see that Mrs. Greenway's dark eyes followed him unobtrusively as he moved about.

"I thought so," Gerta observed to Caradad in a low voice, and nodded in the direction of a far corner. "I knew Mrs. Bryson would get a table of bridge start-

A Typical Arab Meal.

While talking with Mr. Davis, I found he had had interesting adventures among the Arabs.

"In 1935," he said, "I persuaded Eusoff, the son of a sheik, to dress me as an Arab and to take me to his home town. I even wore the curved sword common to Arabs. Most of the houses in the town had mud walls and flat roofs. The palace of the sheik was fitted with oak doors two or three inches thick. It was a two-story building with a cane roof.

Caradad remembered meeting Mrs. Bryson. She had noticed particularly her shining black hair and little eyes, thin lips that gave her mouth a hard, tight expression.

"Is she fond of bridge?" Caradad ventured politely.

"Fond of it? My dear!" Gerta laughed. "She has a metallic soul. 'Mayme Bryson depends upon her spending money—quite successfully. She is always up. That's why she has maneuvered our boy friend into partners. He's a marvelous player. If you excuse me a moment, I'll keep watchful eye on her tactics. You mustn't forget that he is host night as well as Nick. Oh, Captain Kenton... please!"

An erect, elderly man bowed ceremoniously. He had a white mustache that showed off against his very red face. His nose was a trifle bulbous, his eyes were blue and watery.

"Captain," Gerta urged sweetly. "I want you to entertain Miss Vardell a little while. Tell her about some of your interesting experiences in the west. Captain Kenton," she explained to Caradad, "has positively been everywhere. I should not be at all surprised if you find that you two have so much in common. I'll be so grateful to excuse me for a moment."

Captain Kenton proved to be a retired army man. But, in answer to Caradad's polite inquiry, he never had been stationed in the south. He mumbled an indifferent account of service at presidio and in Manila, star across the room all the while, blinking his weak eyes. Suddenly he interrupted himself to say, "Have you met Mrs. Kenton?"

"I'm not sure," Caradad confessed. "There are so many strange faces here—and names."

"I dare say, my dear. I do say. That is she over there with those gentlemen."

Following the direction of a jerk of the ex-soldier's white head, Caradad discovered a young woman, an extremely entertaining figure, one of them perched on arm of her chair.

"Is Mrs. Kenton the lady blue?" she asked doubtfully. From a distance, the golden-haired entertainer could easily have passed for the captain's daughter.

"In blue. That's right—in blue. You really must meet her, Miss Vardell."

"Of course. Of course... right on the tip of my tongue. I've most damnable memory for names. But I never forget a face. May not find you a—er, a little refreshment, miss...?"

"Thank you, I believe not." "But you really must meet Mrs. Kenton," he insisted, blinking his distant wife. "If you'll pardon me a moment, I'll fetch her. He rose from his chair and staid away without waiting for permission, much to Caradad's amusement. An old man with a you wife. And jealous.

Feeling quite sure that Mrs. Kenton would not leave her present company at once, Caradad a to her feet and glanced about. Terry still was at the card table. Mrs. Greenway was leaning over the back of his chair watching him, her face very close to his. Mr. Tankersley was nowhere sight. Quite unnoticed in the general hubbub of merry-making, Caradad strolled about the big room. At the first open door, she paused and glanced within.

She saw a very large room. The walls were formed almost completely by filled book shelves, a save the far end which was given over to a huge fireplace. Two long tables occupied the center of the floor. Easy chairs were scattered about. The illumination was furnished by several bridge lamps, throwing a subdued light from their large parchment shades.

RB HEARS CLASH IN UNION SWITCH WHILE UNDER PACT

Lewis Warns Industry Against Pay Cuts; AFL Rejects Boycott.

Opposing attorneys clash at labor board hearing over workers' right to change union affiliation while under contract to employer.

John L. Lewis, CIO chief, speaking at miners' convention, warns government and industry wage scales must be maintained.

American Federation of Labor executive council rejects European invitation to join in economic boycott of Japan.

Information on whether there ever had been a recommendation for deportation of Harry Bridges, Pacific coast maritime union leader, is asked of labor department by senate commerce committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(P)—

Two reverberations of Oregon labor troubles reached the National Labor Relations Board today when opposing attorneys clashed over the right of workers to switch union affiliation while under contract to an employer. The exchange came during hearings on a complaint by John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization that the Plylock Corporation of Portland, Ore., had refused to recognize the CIO as employee representative after related elections showed members that union predominated in the plant.

The company, one of seven mills to shut down in the Portland area after disputes between the CIO and AFL unions, had a closed shop contract with a latter organization.

Robert Sabin, company attorney, contended the Plylock corporation was not privileged under a law to negotiate with the CIO until expiration of the present contract in March.

Sabin and J. O. Carson, general counsel for the AFL, cited a ruling by an Oregon federal judge to sustain their claim the company was bound by the existing contract.

Ben Anderson, CIO counsel, said the contract was "made with men, and if it continues to bind anyone it should bind the workers themselves."

LEWIS WARNS U. S.

AGAINST PAY CUTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(P)—

Whistling, cheering miners in a convention here heard John L. Lewis warn government and industry today to keep the wage scale up.

If wages are allowed to collapse, there will be "a complete economic, social and political disaster," Lewis told 2,000 of his United Mine Workers jammed into the theater.

One school of economists, he said, wants production costs cut to stimulate production.

"Never Will Work."

"The answer to that is that it is never worked and it never will," the CIO chief said, then scornfully snorted.

"We tried that under President Hoover."

The miners boomed.

As the first medicine for economic ills, Lewis advocated immediate federal appropriation of $3,000,000—five for a gigantic low-cost housing program and one for this winter's relief needs.

For the housing program, Lewis suggested congress pass the social security reform fund.

$2,534,668 in Bank.

Lewis' report showed his union had $2,534,668 in the bank November 30, an increase of $236,449 over the amount reported at the last convention.

The report also advocated a labor legislative program which included a prohibition against the use of the national guard in labor disputes and a prohibition against government purchases from employers cited by the National Labor

Chancellor Cheered by Plans to Aid 'Plant-to-Prosper'

"That's the kind of co-operation we want to give The Atlanta Constitution's 'Plant-to-Prosper' campaign," Chancellor S. V. Sanford of the University System of Georgia told agricultural experts as he finished reading a letter from H. P. Stuckey, director of the Georgia Experiment Station at Griffin, pledging every aid possible to the program. Left to right in the picture are Walter S. Brown, director of the Georgia agricultural extension service; Dean Paul W. Chapman of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, and Dr. Sanford, as they met in Atlanta yesterday to discuss plans for aiding farmers of Georgia.

AFL UNIT DECLINES

BOYCOTT INVITATION

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 25.—(P)—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor today declined an invitation to join European trade unionists in an economic alliance against Japan.

Representatives of Great Britain, France, Switzerland, Sweden, Russia and the Netherlands projected the alliance at Brussels January 15, contemplating governmental embargoes against Japanese goods with a scheme for mutual economic compensation for any losses entailed by the movement.

The conference sought an explicit guarantee of mutual aid from the United States but the AFL council replied to Sir Walter Citrine, president of the International Federation of Trade Unions, that it was "not prepared at present to go as far as suggested."

The council gave assurances, however, that the anti-Japanese boycott voted at the last AFL convention "will be aggressively applied by labor and its friends throughout the United States."

The council delayed a decision until later in its two-week session on the appeal of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor from an order that it oust its CIO affiliates.

President William Green said the Pennsylvania federation requested a period of grace for the purge until after its convention May 10 in view of a "possibility that differences between the AFL and the CIO might be adjusted at an early date."

SENATORS ASK DATA

ON HARRY BRIDGES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(P)—

The senate commerce committee asked the Labor Department today whether there ever had been a recommendation for deportation of Harry Bridges, Pacific coast maritime union leader.

Witnesses at committee hearings had testified Bridges was a native of Australia and one of them said he heard immigration inspectors had recommended the union leader's deportation.

Perkins committee wrote Secretary of Labor Clegg to get the department's complete file on Bridges, as well as a report on the reasons for department decisions on any recommendations as to Bridges.

It said the facts were "for use of the committee in study of maritime labor conditions."

FORD LAWYER SAYS

NLRB BACKING CIO

Company Begins Defense

Against UAWA Charges.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 25.—(P)—The

Ford Motor Company began its defense today at a National Labor Relations Board hearing against charges by the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO) of unfair labor practices at its St. Louis plant.

Daniel Bartlett, Ford attorney, said he would seek to show the labor board "is working with the CIO and pre-judges all other labor organizations."

An objection by counsel for the labor board that the testimony had no bearing on the case prevented the first witness, Jack O'Connell, Ford employee, from detailing a conversation he said he had last spring with an NLRB representative about forming an independent union at the assembly plant.

PLANT-TO-PROSPER WINS MORE BACKING

lated Major Howell, saying: "You are certainly starting a movement that will result in better times for all Georgia."

"The Constitution with her large circulation can spread the 'LIVE-AT-HOME' gospel like no other paper. And when one considers the fact that Georgians 'believe' in The Constitution, then one can realize that your campaign will be a success."

"When we consider the fact that Georgia each year imports foods valued at more than the entire cotton crop, then one will realize the importance of LIVING AT HOME."

Total of 615 Awards.

The Atlanta Constitution will distribute 32 cash awards, totaling $3,500; six silver trophies and 577 other awards to progressive Georgia planters, who, this year, make the best record in "LIVE-AT-HOME" programs, soil conservation, diversification of crops and home improvements. That in brief is the "Plant-to-Prosper" competition.

All one needs to do to qualify for the awards is to fill out the application blank carried in this issue of The Constitution and mail it to Walter S. Brown, director of the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service, at Athens.

Mails yesterday carried many new applications for H. L. Pittman, of Tallapoosa, Haralson county, set the pace by filling out and mailing his entry Sunday afternoon, a few hours after The Constitution announced the competition.

Every Aid for Farmers.

Chancellor S. V. Sanford, of the University System of Georgia, Dean Paul W. Chapman of the Georgia State College of Agriculture and Mr. Brown yesterday mapped preliminary plans to make the most scientific and most modern facilities in farming available to every Georgia farmer.

Achievements of the experiment stations will play important parts in the program, because it is there that crops are tested for Georgia soils. From these experiments, planters will have the best possible information as to what should be planted, how it should be cared for and what results may be expected under given conditions.

Further studies will be made later by the educators. Agricultural experts, who have devoted their time and talents to Georgia's needs and the state's possibilities, will prepare literature available to every farmer in the state.

Co-operative Assistance.

This will be done in co-operation with the Extension Service, the Agricultural College and The Atlanta Constitution.

"Every available facility will be placed at the disposal of the progressive planters of Georgia," Chancellor Sanford asserted, with the concurrence of Dean Chapman and Director Brown.

Chancellor Sanford read the following letter from H. P. Stuckey, director of the Georgia experiment station at Griffin.

"We are much interested in your letter carried in Sunday's Atlanta Constitution endorsing the 'Plant-to-Prosper' campaign. The staff and members of the Georgia experiment station, working under your leadership will give whole-hearted co-operation in making a success of the undertaking."

Research in 50 Counties.

"We are conducting research in more than 50 counties of Georgia in closest co-operation with county agents and extension specialists. We are also working in close co-operation with those state and federal workers carrying on a program of soil conservation in the state. The experiment station workers, I am sure, will be able to render a real service by digging up useful facts which may be applied on the farms."

SENATE APPROVES

HERTY FOUNDATION

Bill Designed To Promote

Wood Pulp Industry.

Creation of the Herty Foundation to promote the papermaking industry in Georgia was approved 35 to 5, yesterday by the state senate.

The approved substitute bill by Senator Lindsay sets up a board of five trustees to be appointed by the Governor to supervise the pulp wood experimental plant and laboratory established in Savannah by Dr. Charles H. Herty, noted chemist.

The foundation would be authorized to accept gifts from any state, corporation or individual, with the provision that any state making a donation could name directors of the plant, but could not name trustees.

The experimental laboratory and plant would become property of the state if the foundation was dissolved.

Dr. Herty was present during debate. The measure was sent to the house.

CAPITAL FRIENDLY TO TAMPA AIRLINE

Georgia Group Confident After Parley at Post Office Department.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS. WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Proposals to establish an airmail route between Atlanta and Tampa, via Tallahassee, Columbus, and several other Georgia cities were discussed in a conference here today between postal officials and representatives of the cities to be served.

Headed by C. F. Palmer, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, a delegation including Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., Representatives Robert Ramspeck and Representative Eugene Cox, all of Georgia, went over the proposed route with Assistant Postmaster General Harilee Branch, in charge of air mail operations. Members of the delegation were optimistic after the conference.

Branch Friendly.

While indicating a friendly attitude to the proposal, Mr. Branch said the department would be unable to extend air mail operations in keeping with new legislation recently passed by congress until further appropriations are made available.

Representative Cox, in co-operation with other members from Georgia and Florida, has introduced a bill to amend the post office department annual supply bill to provide sufficient funds. The bill was passed recently by the house and is now awaiting final action by the senate.

Senator Russell, a member of the senate appropriations committee, has pledged his full support.

Department officials are known to be considering a new air mail route from Memphis and Birmingham to Tampa either by way of Atlanta or Montgomery. At the conference with Assistant Postmaster Branch today, representatives of the Florida cities joined with the Georgia group in urging that the route include Atlanta because of the connections available there to eastern and western points.

Those in Delegation.

Mr. Palmer was accompanied to Washington by Wiley Moore and Smythe Gambrell of Atlanta; Walter Brown, secretary of the Albany Chamber of Commerce; Joe Robinson, of Thomasville; Joe Johnson, of Seminole county, president of the Young Democrats of Georgia; Mayor Bell, of Americus; and others.

Before going to the post office department the group conferred with Senator Walter F. George and Representative Pace, of Americus. Representative Millard Caldwell, of the Tampa district, also took part in the conferences with Mr. Branch.

pass a sales tax bill at this session," Marshall said. "As a matter of fact I believe that some of those members who voted to report the bill favorably will vote against it when and if it comes up on the floor for action."

Whipple Backs Sales Tax.

Proponents of the sales tax measure included Representative L. A. Whipple, of Bleckley county, the dry leader in the house. In addition to Marshall, opposition was voiced by Representatives Henderson, Lanham, of Floyd county; James V. Carmichael, of Cobb county; and Helen Douglas Mankin, of Fulton county.

Mrs. Mankin announced she would fight the bill on the floor. Under the provisions of the measure, 50 per cent of the revenue would go to the eleemosynary institutions, 40 per cent to the counties and 10 per cent to the state. The state is supposed to reduce the ad valorem tax proportionately to the money received from the sales tax.

Just how long the debate on the liquor bill will last was problematic last night. Senator Harrison said he did not expect long speeches from the drys and Senator Atkinson said the wets would confine their talks to explanations of the bill.

Little Difference.

In addition to providing for county option, the senate substitute differs little from the house measure. Sponsors of the substitute said they were motivated chiefly by a desire to make certain the constitutionality of the bill.

Senator Lawson Patton, of Lakeland, said he would have several amendments. Meanwhile, Governor Rivers revealed he has delayed until Friday his plans for an appearance before the assembly to discuss taxation. The Governor previously had said he would speak Thursday.

The chief executive declared he still hoped the assembly could conclude its work by the end of next week.

Most important developments of yesterday's proceedings included passage of the rolling store tax by the senate, house approval of another of the series of Purdom-Lindsay anti-repeal bills, action of the house putting on the calendar a bill by Representative Randall Evans, of McDuffie, to allocate another cent of the gasoline tax to the counties.

Representative J. Paxton Erwin, of Lamar county, demanded relief for the county governments.

Evans Bill Fight.

A close battle developed in the house over the Evans bill. The six cent gasoline tax, another cent goes to the common schools equalization fund and another is set aside for county contracts by the highway department.

In addition, the highway department for the next 10 years must pay out approximately $3,000,000 each year to the counties for highways built before they were taken into the state system.

At present the gasoline tax yields $18,000,000 a year, of which $3,000,000 goes to the counties directly, $3,000,000 to the schools, $3,000,000 to county contracts and $3,000,000 to the counties for old highway debts, leaving less than $6,000,000 to match federal funds, pay overhead and continue the state aid system.

The Evans bill was reported adversely by the house committee on public highways but a vote of 77 to 72 the house yesterday overrode the committee and placed the bill on the calendar.

A long calendar was offered by the rules committee yesterday and

WILLIAM ROY CONINE.

W. R. CONINE NAMED POST OFFICE HEAD

Succeeds R. J. Jackson at Hapeville.

President Roosevelt sent to the senate yesterday for confirmation the nomination of William Roy Conine as postmaster of Hapeville.

Conine was high man in the competitive examination recently. He is in the automobile business, has lived in Hapeville 12 years, and is a son of W. Y. Conine, prominent Clayton county landowner.

He is a native of Clayton county and was graduated from Oglethorpe University in 1921. He will succeed R. J. Jackson, who has been acting postmaster since the death last summer of his father, R. L. Jackson.

Conine is married and the father of two children.

REECE CONFIRMED AS COURT JUSTICE

Solicitor General Expected To Assume Duties Next Monday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(P)—Solicitor General Stanley Reed, chief defender of Roosevelt legislation before the supreme court, won unanimous senate confirmation today for a seat on the tribunal.

The 53-year-old Kentuckian is expected to assume his new duties next Monday. It will be necessary for him to resign his present position and to take oaths to support the constitution and to administer justice impartially. He will be the seventy-seventh person to sit on the high tribunal.

So quickly was the nomination approved that few persons in the galleries knew what had occurred. Vice President Garner, who prides himself on the speed with which he makes the legislative machinery work, functioned in top form, as soon as the clerk read the name of Reed, the vice president sang out:

"Without objection."

By that Garner meant that, in the absence of any protest, the nomination was confirmed.

Reed was appointed to succeed Justice George Sutherland, of Utah, who retired January 18 at the age of 75.

There has been speculation as to whether the new justice will disqualify himself from deciding on litigation with which he was connected as solicitor general. The first case to be argued next Monday may indicate his future policy.

It involves the government's effort to escape paying $380,000 in income tax refunds to the estates of the late Andrew W. Mellon and R. B. Mellon. The government's heretofore position was that the refund in the case was signed by Reed.

The Evans bill went to the foot of it.

The senate-approved rolling-store tax places the state levy at $50 on each store and providing the counties may levy a similar tax. The yield from the state levy would go to the Milledgeville hospital.

JORDAN, MONROE WIN OVER G. M. A., BOYS' HIGH FIVES

Cadets Force League Leaders To Play Extra Period.

Jordan High, of Columbus, leaders of the Big Eight conference, barely escaped by the skin of their teeth, so to speak, yesterday when they nosed out Coach Sam Burdette's G. M. A. Cadets, 29 to 25, in an extra-period contest.

Indeed, the Cadets were leading the league leaders by two points with only 30 seconds left to play. Then Kelly, flashy Jordan forward, broke through the G. M. A. defense to shoot two points to tie the score, 25 to 25. The regular playing time ended shortly after.

The extra-period play was dominated by Jordan, who was making a desperate effort to preserve their undefeated conference record. Two field goals accounted for the four-point margin.

The Cadets were trailing at half time, 15 to 6, but staged a remarkable rally and played the Jordan boys off their feet in the second half.

Catches Didapper On Fish Hook

WEST POINT, Ga., Jan. 25.—(P)—Here's a bird of a fish story—and the fisherman has a moving picture film for proof he wasn't dreaming.

E. R. Lehmann, superintendent of the Langdale mill, lakes for a bass at Dead Lake, Fla. He caught a didapper. The bird had swallowed the live minnow on the cast.

He said the bird flew into his face when he began reeling it in, and after recovering from the surprise, took the picture for proof.

Vandy and the Blenny Have a Lot In Common Now

In one respect, basketball, although a team game, is a lot like golf. It's an humblin' game.

For instance, at the tail end of the Southeastern conference standings are three schools that rate very highly in football.

Alabama, conference football champion and Rose Bowl team, emulates Atlas—holding up the other 12 teams.

'Bama hasn't won a game, losing four straight in the conference, and is facing an uphill battle to get in the annual tournament.

Second from the bottom is L. S. U., a southern football power and Sugar Bowl team. Old Lou has lost two conference games.

A notch ahead of L. S. U. is Vanderbilt, with one victory and three losses. Sewanee probably couldn't beat Vandy in a million years or more in football, but the Tigers of the mountain top finally crashed through in basketball not long ago.

So the standings may show the Commodores ahead of the Bayou Bengals and the Crimson Tide, but as far as rating goes now the Vandy team is in the same class with the blenny, a fish that's found in rocky places at the bottom of the creek.

There's a real reason for Alabama's slow start. Most of the Tide basketekers double in brass, as does Coach Hank Crisp, one of the best.

The 'Bama players returned from the Rose Bowl trip on a Wednesday and Friday and Saturday engaged Tulane.

Alabama potentially has a fine basketball team, and leave it to Hank Crisp to get them started in time to qualify for the annual tourney.

It may be tonight. 'Tis a shame, indeed, the fans won't be able to see the tall Techs and the Titanic Tidemen in action at the naval armory. The Jackets carry an unbeaten record into the game.

SPEAKING OF TRIPS.

The Jewish Progressive Club's fine basketball team, coached by Shew Lauter, has a great trip in prospect the latter part of February.

Meyer Balser, who rates tops as a manager, will arrange his business so that he must call on clients out of town coincident with the departure of the Progressives.

The club team will play the Y. M. H. A. at Birmingham on February 27. The following night they're scheduled to play the Hebrew A. C. at Mobile. From there they go to New Orleans.

So they'll see the Mardi Gras as guests of the Y. M. H. A. and the following night will play the Y. M. H. A. in the concluding game of a fine trip.

It is surprising to find that so many club members have business in New Orleans, besides Balser. Joe Zimmerman, governor of athletics; Charles G. Shinas, club president; Mackey Klein and others all have pressing engagements away down yonder in New Orleans.

For two years now the Celtics have had the highest regard for the club team. They said recently that the Progressives are the best amateur team they have played this season.

That is the ultimate in compliments.

SCOTT PRAISES LAMOTTE.

The wind was howling outside and there was an occasional flurry of snow flakes. Any thought of bird hunting was out of the question, so the talk switched to baseball and the name of Bobby LaMotte was brought up by President Trammell Scott.

LaMotte, who used to play in the Southern league, is in charge of the affairs of the Savannah Indians, who drew around 200,000 in attendance last year.

"LaMotte has done a lot for baseball," President Scott pointed out. "His boundless enthusiasm has created a new interest in the game at Savannah. The youngsters are going around with gloves fastened to their belts again."

"The fact that the Crackers will train there also will create additional interest in the game."

Minor league baseball can use more LaMottes.

A PAUL RICHARDS STORY.

Let it be understood in the beginning that this is Paul Richards' story. It's his story, and I don't want to be stuck with it. It seems that this party cornered Ike Boone one day and chewed on his ear at great length, so to speak, on his merits as a player and what a great admirer of Boone's he was.

"You sure can hit, Ike; and boy, there isn't a better fielder in the game," he declared. "I've been an admirer of yours for a long time. How about a dime for a sandwich?"

Boone hemmed and hawed and finally, reaching in his pocket, he produced the coin.

"Okay," he responded, "here's the dime—where's the sandwich?"

"TERRIBLE TERRY.—BY BILL TERRY."

Finally, Bill Terry has told his side of the long-standing feud he has had with sports writers. It is told in highly entertaining fashion in this week's issue of the Sat. Eve Post.

Terry relates how, in the beginning, he had to hock his wife's engagement ring for board and room. He cites this example as a reason why he has been called a "penny-pincher" and other things in recent years. He points out that he is determined to have financial security; that never will be go through again the horror of such poverty as was his in the beginning.

In the story, Terry also tells how he refuses to play any favorites with the writers and thereby largely has escaped plaudits he might have had. He enjoys his side of the "feud," he reveals. It is very entertaining reading and tells, for the first time, Terry's side of it.

UNBEATEN TECH SEEKING FIFTH, 'BAMA AFTER 1ST

Four Members of Each Starting Lineup Are Grid Players.

THE LINEUPS.

ALABAMA Pos. TECH Bradford (4) F. E. Jones Starnes (4) F. Jordan Estes (4) C. Johnston Shoemaker (4) G. Sims Warren (4) G. Anderson

By JACK TROY.

Tech, with four straight victories, and Alabama, with four straight defeats, will meet tonight in one of those hoop-hoop-hooray attractions of the hardwood. Starting time is 8 o'clock.

Hank Crisp's steadily improving Crimson Tide five will enter the game on the short end of the odds and with a chance to spring an upset.

It does, however, seem an outside chance, since the Jackets have been going strong since the season opened and have been getting better all the time.

Alabama, with football players liberally sprinkled through the squad, got off to a bad start this year because of the Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day.

A THREAT NOW.

But, as said, despite this, the Crimson team definitely is a threat now. Hank Crisp is getting the tall Tidemen better organized.

Four of the five starters tonight were members of the football team. They include Perron Shoemaker and Tut Warren, guards; Paul Estes, center; and Vic Bradford, forward. John Starnes, forward, is the only non-football man. He didn't play high school basketball, either.

Seven of the 12 members of the Tide squad are six feet or taller. And seven of them are sophomores. Bradford is alternate captain of the 1938 football team. He's a quarterback. Warren, Shoemaker and Estes are ends.

Four of Tech's five starters also are football players. They are Ed Jones and Bill Jordan, forwards; Fletcher Sims and Junior Anderson, guards. Bo Johnston, center, plays only basketball and baseball.

REGULAR ENDS.

Like 'Bama, Tech has two regular football ends on the varsity team—Jones and Jordan.

It is expected to develop into a more or less trot contest, since Alabama is getting on the ragged edge with regard to being eligible for the annual Southeastern conference tournament in March.

Hank Crisp's team is apt to cut loose at any time and start a furious drive through the standings. At present, they're at the bottom of the list.

Tech Frosh Lose To Abraham Baldwin.

A fighting basketball machine from Abraham Baldwin College, of Tifton, defeated the Georgia Tech Freshmen yesterday, 31 to 23, at the Naval Armory.

Brooks and Wilder, Baldwin forward and guard, respectively, led their team's scoring with eight points each.

Jim Hughes, big baby Jacket center, sank 10 points for the individual scoring lead of the afternoon.

Burroughs, Tech guard, played a bang-up defensive game.

CASSIDY, JORDAN IN RETURN BOUT

Just what will happen at the East Point auditorium Friday night when Atlanta's own Tarzan Jordan meets Mike Cassidy in a return 90-minute bout is being wondered by the fans, as well as Promoter Frank Bettis.

Cassidy last week was fined by the commission, pay riot, under arrest by the East Point policeman and his purse held up for pouring liquid fluid into Jordan's eyes during the last fall of their bout, which caused him to lose his head and go reeling mad in the ring knocking out several people who tried to quiet him. Jordan stated he would not prefer charges against his opponent, provided Cassidy was forced to meet him again at an early date. He stated he would get revenge. There will be no question about this. Cassidy will be searched by police before he enters the ring.

Two weeks ago Cassidy met Jack Ross here in a bout and chloroformed his opponent. He has really run roughshod over all opposition and referees alike, and it is squarely up to Jordan to teach him a lesson.

Cochrane Called Most Courageous Athlete of Year

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(P) Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, tonight was named the "most courageous athlete of 1937" by the Philadelphia Sporting Writers' Association.

Before a lineup of notables in the sporting realm and 1,000 guests at the association's banquet the plucky manager and former catcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, was given a plaque.

"Here was a man that lay at death's door, but who came back before the season to lead his team," said Al Horwitz, president of the association, in presenting Cochrane with the award.

Cochrane was seriously injured last summer when he was struck on the head by a fast ball pitched by Bump Hadley, of the New York Yankees, in a game at New York.

The banquet this year was arranged as a deferred birthday party for Connie Mack, venerable manager of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Present to pay tribute to Mack were dozens of baseball men, many of whom shared with him some of his most notable successes.

Mack To Remain As A's Skipper.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(UP)—Connie Mack tonight definitely spiked rumors that he would retire as manager of the Philadelphia Athletics baseball team, declaring "they'll have to cut my uniform off to get me out."

Mack had said earlier that he would answer reports that a late summer illness which forced him to relinquish managerial duties would cause his withdrawal from an active part in the game.

The veteran 75-year-old manager said at the Philadelphia sports writers' banquet that it was his intention to "continue as long as I am able."

"If I had any thought of retiring, this would be a bad time to do it," he said, referring to the position of his A's in the American league.

Rufus Adair Cards Ace at Black Rock

Rufus L. Adair became a charming member of Atlanta's 1938 Holiday-One Club with an ace Tuesday afternoon.

Adair sank a brassie shot on the 17th green on the Black Rock Country Club course. He played in a foursome with J. E. Thrift, Dr. W. F. Wells and O. J. Huey.

It was the second ace of the year on the 17th hole at Black Rock. The cup is 185 yards from the tee and Adair's drive hit on the edge of the green and rolled into the cup.

Seeking their ninth victory the season, the J. P. C. Progressives, unbeaten in amateur competition, clash with Oglethorpe tonight at 9 o'clock at the J. P. C. on Pryor street. The Oglethorpe freshmen will battle the J. P. C. in a preliminary game starting at 7:30.

Tonight's game will be the opening battle of the season for the Progressives. Thursday night they play practice game in Pensacola, Fla. and Friday they skip over to Auburn for games with the Tigers on Friday and Saturday nights.

The Petrels have a fair tale, although it is lacking in experience. Ben Forkner and Allen Vasey will probably start at forward with Darden Archer at center. Ralph King and Kinsey Stewart at guards.

The Progressives started off season in December and were in through all opposition, winning until about two weeks ago. In the course of their eight victories they turned back both the University of Georgia and the University of North Carolina, and Union College of Barbourville, Ky., teams who defeated last year's southern intercollegiate champion Warren recently. However, in their 12 games J. P. C. has lost only one.

Coach Shew Lauter will probably start Morris Katz and "Happy" Ginsberg at forward; Brown at center, and "Pony" Minsk a Gordon Greenberg at guards. Billy Meditz, forward ace who has been out with a bum knee, probably see lots of service tonight.

The latest is William Burt, All-G. I. A. end on the undefeated Lanier team of 1937, who will cast his lot with the University of Alabama.

GIVES "TRAINER'S TROPHY"

Mike Steals Show At Old Lou Banquet.

By JACK TROY.

There's a new Mike Chambers down at L. S. U., Al Smith, public relations man, reveals.

He's not the breezy Mike of old who carried wounded hulkies off football fields on his shoulder. He's married now, of course, and has settled down. He's a homebody.

At Old Lou, the athletic staff will vigorously dispute any insinuation that he isn't the finest trainer in the country.

DRAMATIC INCIDENT.

Al Smith, who was graduated at Georgia and is on the way to visit his parents at Waycross, tells of a recent L. S. U. banquet in which Chambers dramatically stole the show.

Mike decided to give a "trainer's trophy" to the boy who made the best record both on and off the field in the matter of conduct and observance of rules.

His choice was Jimmy Warmbrod, reserve center, and in making his presentation speech, Mike said:

"I am presenting this trophy to Jimmy Warmbrod because he is the sort of boy I would like to have been and I know he is going to be the sort of man I would like to be."

There was a lot of feeling in the Irish voice of Mike Chambers, and one well can imagine how he moved the coaches and players assembled there.

ROLE OF PHYSICIAN IN INDUSTRY TOLD ATLANTA DOCTORS

First Conclave Hears Visitor Declare Workers Are Consumers, Too.

Speaking on "The Physician in Industry," Dr. Allen D. Lazenby, of Baltimore, a member of the council on industrial health of the American Medical Association, yesterday declared: "As one-third of the population of the country is engaged in industry, it behooves industry to make health of its workers a primary concern. A worker is not only a producer, but also a consumer."

Dr. Lazenby spoke at an afternoon session of the first annual Atlanta Graduate Medical Assembly, which began a three-day conclave yesterday at the Biltmore hotel, under auspices of the Fulton County Medical Society.

Dr. C. C. Aven, president of the Fulton County Medical Society, presided. Dr. Hugo Roesler, of Philadelphia, associate professor of medicine, Temple University, and Dr. John J. Morton, of Rochester, N. Y., professor of surgery, University of Rochester. The assembly is being held under auspices of the Fulton County Medical Society.

"To maintain the proper balance between production and consumption," Dr. Lazenby said, "the worker's health must be considered. The pre-employment physical examination is of vital importance in attaining this end."

"There is need for thoroughness and the correction of remedial defects. Pre-employment examinations are not constructive unless remedial defects are corrected. In this connection, many so-called examinations fully deserve objections raised to them."

He added there need for increased knowledge of occupational diseases, and the "burden of health rests with society as a whole, and not merely the medical profession."

"I take it to be a social axiom that the opportunity to earn a livelihood is the inherent right of every citizen unless he is an invalid. If he is an invalid, he is the responsibility of the local community in which he lives."

Heart Disease.
The history of a patient with heart disease is highly important, Dr. Roesler, associate professor of medicine at Temple University, declared last night.

In a talk on "Errors in the Diagnosis and Treatment of Heart Diseases" at a night session, Dr. Roesler, who came to this country from Vienna six years ago, pointed out that mechanically acquired information, such as X-ray and electric cardiographs, should supplement a

The Weather Bureau warned craft along the eastern seaboard and along the gulf from New Orleans to Pascagoula, Miss.

The Pas, Manitoba, reported yesterday's lowest temperature—30 below. Morning lows included 10 below at Huron, S. D., Moscow, Minn., and Williston, N. D.

The south's morning lows ranged from Miami's 64 to Nashville's 28.

NEW ENGLAND STORM GROUND AIR LINES

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—(P)—High winds tonight grounded transport planes out of Boston as landslides and floods followed a steady, warm rain that pelted New England's snow-covered hills region.

A landslide covered the Canadian Pacific railroad tracks at Ryegate, Vt., and delayed trains for two hours over the Boston-Montreal route.

Portland, Maine, reported a 90-mile southeast gale halted shipping, grounded planes, swelled rivers and closed schools.

MICHIGAN FIGHTING DRIFTS 20 FEET HIGH

MARQUETTE, Mich., Jan. 25.—(P)—The worst snow storm in years raged throughout Michigan's upper peninsula today, piling new blockings of snow 20 feet high, blocking highways completely and marooning hundreds in stalled automobiles, and isolating farms, schoolhouses and mines.

Gathering last night, the storm swept down on lower Michigan today but in a lesser degree and apparently the full force of the blizzard was centered along Lake Superior.

Fifty children, marooned in a township school five miles from Ironwood, faced the prospect of spending another 48 hours in their classrooms.

COLD WAVE HALTS FLOODS IN ILLINOIS

ROCKFORD, Ill., Jan. 25.—(P)—A cold wave halted the advance of flood waters in northern Illinois today as the Red Cross moved to provide shelter for the refugees.

The rise of the Rock river in this center of the swollen stream area ceased when the temperature dropped to six above zero during a snowstorm.

But a warning of danger downstream was issued by Captain Charles H. Barth of the engineers' office at Rock Island. He expected the crest to reach the tri-city area where the Rock flows into the Mississippi—by Friday, and advised residents affected by last week's flood to move out by that time.

MIAMI GRAND JURY SIFTS BOND ISSUE

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 25.—(P)—While prosecutors prepared for speedy trials of five city officials indicted for soliciting bribes, a special grand jury delved today into details of the $28,000,000 municipal bond refunding program.

Meanwhile the jury looked into a situation where 15 employees of the city shops and waste division were discharged on one day, receiving two weeks' pay for lack of notice and two weeks' vacation pay apiece, and then all restored to service the following day.

"It is apparent there was nothing more serious in this regard than a stupid blunder," Worley announced, saying the grand jury found no action necessary. Who committed the blunder was not established.

Aurora Borealis Hard at Work, Playing Dickens With Your News

300,000 Miles of A.P. Wires Catching the Very 'Xpghshlu.'

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(P)—The Aurora Borealis was hard at work tonight, flaming with gorgeous neon light over the northern sky. Consequently, these words and all the other Associated Press dispatches appearing in this newspaper come to you by courtesy of metallic grounds.

The Aurora Borealis, as a matter of fact, hasn't anything to do with it, but it adds a great deal of color to a scientific treatise and can't be ignored.

Telegraphic communications throughout the United States, including the Associated Press network of 300,000 miles of leased wires, have caught the dicken's during the last couple of days. The static was so intense that when operators sent out such a phrase as "diplomatic sources" the words arrived as "awgwxm kvkpvxqv."

The veterans said, "the Aurora Borealis again," and repeated words three and four times until they were received correctly.

But experts in the Associated Press technical research laboratory explained it wasn't Aurora's fault; that the cause was the same thing which caused the northern lights: magnetic storms.

Four Persons in Atlanta and Middle Georgia Report Phenomenon.

Those merry dancers of the northern skies which the Aurora Borealis have intrigued scientists from the beginning of time, have been seen in Atlanta and middle Georgia by at least four persons.

Two of the witnesses are aviators, and when they saw the Aurora Borealis in the sky they were high above the earth piloting their way into Atlanta from Charleston, S. C. The others are W. K. Sims, member of the Candler field weather bureau, and J. L. Hummel, sanitary engineer of Dougherty county and former member of the coast and geodetic survey.

Hummel saw the Aurora Borealis on the road between Butler and Thomaston, but it wasn't the same kind he had seen in former years. He described it as being "different from any I've ever seen before."

Pure Vermillion.
"When I first saw the display, it was pale pink," he related. "Then it changed color to almost pure vermilion. After remaining this color for a while, the beams showed up and then it all faded out."

"Even as I looked, however, the lights showed up again, bluish-white in color."

"I have seen Aurora Borealis displays in Canada and other parts of the north country before, but never was it more colorful than the display I saw tonight."

Mr. Hummel calculated the phenomena extended from 15 degrees east of north to 25 degrees east of north and from 15 degrees above the earth to 25 degrees, almost in the shape of a beacon light—about half-way up the semi-circle on each side. It lasted half an hour.

The report of sighting the lights near Thomaston is the farthest point south on the Atlantic coast that has reported a view.

Seen at 6 O'Clock.
Pilot E. C. Davis in explaining the phenomenon after he had dropped into Candler field last night said "It was almost due north and about 6 o'clock last night my copilot, Charles Ingram, called my attention to the sight and I looked west to be sure that what I saw was not a last lingering glimpse of the sun which I saw. But the sun had set long before."

Weatherman Sims reported he saw the northern lights at 4 o'clock last Saturday morning. "They formed an arc in the north-northwest sky," said Sims. "There were many streamers—resembling the rays of a beacon light—about half-way up the semi-circle on each side. It lasted half an hour."

The report of sighting the lights near Thomaston is the farthest point south on the Atlantic coast that has reported a view.

SUBSIDY INCREASED TO 'LITTLE FARMERS'

Maximum of $10,000 Set in Legislators' Program.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(P)—Proposals to place low limits on the size of subsidy checks going to large-scale farmers have been discarded in favor of a $10,000 top, it has been announced by legislators working on a new farm program.

Along with this decision to allow payments of this size to the "big fellow," Chairman Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, of the senate agriculture committee, said it was agreed to increase somewhat the size of the checks to the "little fellow."

The $10,000 limit was decided upon, the legislators reported, in reconsidering an earlier decision to remove all limitations.

Four lost their lives and 14 were wounded during an insurgent air attack on Badalona, 12 miles north-west and Barcelona.

Fifteen government bombers dropped seven and one-half tons of bombs on Valladolid, insurgent stronghold 100 miles northwest of Madrid, the government communiqué declared.

Mrs. William Sibley Is Hostess To 'The Dumb Club,' of Marietta

By Sally Forth.

FOR the past eight years, a group of prominent young matrons of Marietta have met every alternate Tuesday across the bridge tables. They play contract, but not the tournament type, and although they are all expert players, the name of their group is "The Dumb Club."

Yesterday they met in Atlanta with Mrs. William Sibley at her Collier road residence.

The name has an amusing origin. When the club was first formed, the former Julia McNeil went home from one of the meetings and when her husband, Charlie DeFoor, asked her where she had been, she told him, "Oh, to the bridge club." Noted for his humor, Charlie replied, "Oh, the Dumb Club." The name stuck, and now after eight years, the matrons still call themselves "The Dumb Club." They insist that they do not mind the insinuation the name implies, and prefer to call themselves by the title given by Charlie DeFoor.

The former Hazel Hodgeson, who is Mrs. Morgan McNeil Jr., was the originator of the club which has survived many of the other groups formed among the Marietta matrons. There are no officers, no dues, and no obligations. They gather only for occasional bridge playing and conversation. Two of the members, Mrs. William Sibley and Mrs. Joseph S. Raine, live in Atlanta, and the others include Mrs. Morgan McNeil Jr., Mrs. Eugene McNeil, Mrs. Leon Blair, Mrs. Arthur Crowe, Mrs. Stanton Reed and Mrs. George Thomas.

Four other members of the club who reside in distant cities include Mrs. Charles DeFoor, of Fort Myers, Fla.; Mrs. Frank McNeil, of Bronxville, N. Y.; Mrs. Arthur Williams, of New York, and Mrs. Lindsey Forrester, of Greenville, S. C.

ISN'T it nice to anticipate the news? Sally has done just that. A number of weeks ago Sally heard that one of the most attractive and very young widows in Atlanta society was engaged. The name was not mentioned but the account of her beauty, gracious manners and the fact that she was the mother of one small child at once caused Sally to guess the bride-to-be.

Imagine her surprise to discover that the person referred to at that time was an entirely different person, but Sally's choice for the fitting description has since consented to wed a popular former Atlantan, now making his home in a city not too far east, yet too far from Atlanta to make frequent visits possible. The friends of this interesting couple will be more than pleased at the coming announcement, while regretting that the wedding will permanently locate them near the state of Virginia.

DID you see the unusual table arrangement at a large dinner party given Sunday evening at the Capital City Club? Huge wooden bowls were laden with the freshest of fruits and shining vegetables combined with nuts. With the appropriate checked cloth and brass candlesticks holding white tapers it made a delightful variation from the stilted dinner "setup."

KATHRYN Wellington has been entertained royally for the past two weeks in Charlotte, N. C., according to reports in the society columns of that city's newspapers. Kathryn left in early January for Charlotte to visit her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Duncan, who had planned parties galore for their niece. At several social gatherings Kathryn shared honors with Carrie Marshall Young, who is well known in social circles here, where she has visited her aunt, Mrs. Gillespie Sadler, and whose marriage to Peter Gilchrist takes place in Charlotte next month.

Before returning to Atlanta, Kathryn will go to Washington, D. C., to visit Mary Kay Spinks, her Pi Beta Phi sorority sister and former classmate at George Washington University. If Kathryn has

New Liquid Strengthens Nails and Prevents Their Breaking

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

ALBANY, N. Y., Monday.—I wonder if you have been thinking as much as I have these past few weeks about the usual winter epidemic of deaths from pneumonia? When I was a child I remember hearing over and over again, that one of the most important factors in pneumonia was the nursing care which the patient received. I know, of course, that there are types of this dread disease in which recovery is practically hopeless. But the old saying still holds good, nursing in pneumonia and all other diseases is of great importance to the patient.

A doctor may diagnose a case accurately, he may give his orders carefully, but if they are not carried out skillfully and conscientiously, the patient will suffer.

In the course of my life I have seen a great deal of nursing and it has been my good fortune to have been associated with many excellent nurses. One, Miss Blanche Spring, was for many years a constant help in time of trouble, a friend and, for me, a great educational factor.

I liked the work in a sick room but I knew very little about the way in which it should be done until Miss Spring came to me. Her standards were high and she taught me a great deal. The best thing I learned was the difference between a really well-trained nurse and one whose training was inadequate or whose temperament was unfitted to the work she had to do.

I am glad that in many states we are at last realizing the fact that, an eight-hour day is long enough for any trained nurse in charge of a patient who is critically ill. I am glad also that we are beginning to realize the necessity of registering in a manner which will clearly indicate the training and capacity of those who care for the sick.

There should be no such thing as unclassified nursing. All nurses should be registered professional nurses and this should indicate adequate training. Those who are needed for chronic, convalescent cases and who do not require the same type of training, their papers as well as the professional registered nurses. That public aid to pay for professional care, should know exactly what it is getting and should be protected from inadequate training.

Any mother with small children to raise, or with invalids in her family, will realize what this will mean in peace of mind and in the bolstering up of her own courage when she is tired and uncertain of what should be done for her patients.

Mrs. Scheider and I are in Albany today for the meeting of a group of state officials of the National Youth Administration. I cannot help keeping a special interest in my own state. And so I am anxious to hear of the work that is being done and the plans for the future. I feel much of this work should eventually become a permanent program under existing organizations.

By RUTH CHAMBERS

How do left-overs rate in your household? Do they form a problem, a "leak" in your food budget, or are they so much of an asset that you actually plan for them? I mean, do you purchase and prepare enough food for one meal so that there is enough left to provide the basis of subsequent meals?

This is an excellent way of economizing, not only in money, but in fuel and in time and energy spent at your kitchen tasks. Usually you get a better bargain at the market when you buy in larger quantities, and in these days of modern refrigeration, even perishable foods can be kept for quite a long period.

But if the food is used wastefully, if left-overs are allowed to spoil, or if the same food is served so often without variation that the family tires of it your "savings" will be mostly imaginary. On the other hand, both meat and vegetables can be so tastily prepared, sometimes in combination, that they are as good on second serving as on first.

Roasts Hold Goodness.

Roast meats especially keep their goodness longer after they are cooked. And their flavor can be used to add appetite appeal to other foods. In fact, it is almost always wise to roast a generous amount of meat so that there will be enough left to be sliced out for sandwiches, or to be cut up and warmed again with vegetables, or to be diced and served in a meat salad, so popular these days.

These left-over dishes are usually easy to prepare, since they require little cooking, and they offer a great opportunity to the homemaker who likes to serve dainty, unusual dishes, with a tempting blend of flavors. In fact, to label some of these offerings "left-overs" doesn't seem to do justice to them at all. One thing is certain—there won't be much left over of these left-overs!

Lamb Patties.

Make one cup of medium white sauce. Season it well. Stir into it two cups of finely cut lamb, left from roast. Serve very hot in bread patty cases.

Bread Patty Cases.

Slice the required number of pieces of bread 2 inches thick. Cut with a round cutter. Scoop out the inside, leaving the bottom intact. Cut a lid for each case, dip lid and case in milk and allow to dry a little. Dip in egg beaten up in milk and fry in deep fat to a nice golden brown.

Pork Salad Platter.

3 cups cold roast pork, diced
3 hard cooked eggs
1-2 onion, grated
1 chopped green pepper
1 cup whipped cream
3 stalks celery, diced
Stuffed olives, sliced
Mayonnaise dressing
French dressing
Paprika

Add the diced celery and chopped green pepper to the diced pork. Grate in the onion. Marinate with French dressing. Add paprika and set aside to chill. When ready to serve, add whipped cream to the mayonnaise and fold into the salad. Pile in a rounded mound on crisp lettuce leaves on a large platter. Garnish the salad with slices of hard-cooked egg and olives. Around the salad place a border of pineapple slices masked with mayonnaise dressing and sprinkled liberally with paprika. Celery stalks, filled with cream cheese, add attractiveness to the platter.

French Beef Hash.

2 cups cold cooked beef
2 potatoes
2 tablespoons grated onion
11-2 cups thin white sauce
1-2 cup grated cheese
Salt and pepper

Slice the potatoes and arrange in a buttered baking dish. Season and cover with a thin white sauce. Grind the cold cooked beef and place on top of the potatoes. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Cover and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) for 45 minutes. Dot with parsley and serve in a baking dish.

Roast Beef Salad.

1 cup cooked roast beef, diced
2 cups cooked string beans
1-2 cup cooked potatoes, diced
1-2 teaspoon prepared horseradish
1-4 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon vinegar
Dash of paprika
Salt
Dash of white pepper

Blend the mayonnaise, vinegar, salt, pepper and paprika. Combine with the potatoes and beans (cut length-wise and then crosswise into 3-4-inch pieces). Chill until ready to serve. Add the horseradish and beef and toss together lightly. Serve on crisp lettuce with radish roses.

AFTERNOON FROCK WITH NEW LIFTED WAISTLINE

A gracious dignity is the distinguishing feature of this dress with the lifted waistline. It is designed to flatter the full figure and to make the woman of larger proportions look inches smaller. The belt is optional. Note how the bosom is softly softened by shirring. The Princess lines dominate this season and give a molded look to the silhouette that few women can resist. For immediate wear, make this dress of one of the new silk or rayon prints and achieve color contrast in the roll collar. Satin or print would be an effective combination. Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

LISTEN TO YOURSELF TALK—THEN EXERCISE YOUR VOCAL CHORDS.

If you were to have a record made of your voice, you probably would not recognize it as your own, for when you talk you do not hear your voice as other people hear it. In talking, certain vibrations are transmitted from the throat to the nerves of the ear so that you hear your voice in two ways. It sounds different to you than to other people.

For this reason, the average person is often unaware of her faults in speaking. It is difficult for you to tell whether your voice is habitually monotonous, shrill or harsh, or whether your speech is too hesitant or too rapid.

Most of us do not have as pleasant speaking voices as we could have, according to Dr. N. L. Hoopengartner, professor of psychology in business at New York University. Dr. Hoopengartner is a pioneer in voice training. Twenty years ago he became interested in the development of the pleasing speaking voice as a business asset and time has proved how right he was. Today employers pay particular attention to the voices of applicants. In fact, a lovely speaking voice is the primary qualification for certain positions. You can talk yourself right out of a job!

A few years ago Dr. Hoopengartner introduced the use of the recording machine for the detection of voice flaws. He found that students are cognizant of monotony or shrillness much more quickly when they hear their voices from the record.

Now you can drop in at a music store and have your voice recorded. The only objection to this record test is that you may not know what to do about them. It would pay to go a step further and have your voice recorded under the supervision of a voice instructor, who will advise you how to perfect it.

Instructors find the most prevalent defects in voices are in tone, which may be monotonous, harsh or shrill; in hesitancy of speech and in talking through the teeth. Dr. Hoopengartner says that monotony can often be relieved simply by bringing this fault to the speaker's attention. Knowing the fault exists aids in its correction.

The hesitant speaker usually interperses his words with funny noises like "uh" and "ah-ah," and the correction is to stop speaking until you know exactly the words you wish to use instead of groping aloud for them. It may also be helpful to talk more slowly.

The voice may be raised simply by opening the mouth a little wider and lowered by not opening it quite so wide.

Then there is the question of whether your voice is pleasant or grates. Often a great deal can be done to make the voice pleasing by being aware that you need to soften the tonal quality.

A good way to improve your voice is to practice reading aloud every day and listening as you read. Dialogue which allows for change of tone is the best practice.

Voice-instructors sometimes advise stretching a vowel to improve tone. Repeat the vowel sounds, a, e, ah, o and oo, with a rising and falling inflection.

You can, perhaps with only a little effort, make your voice pleasing. Dr. Hoopengartner believes that the largest percentage of our voice defects are due to the fact that no one has ever told us we need to improve our voices.

Beauty According To You

Lillian Mae Styles

Do you envy the person with long, tapering, beautiful nails as you sigh over your own broken ones that refuse to grow? Then I have a worthwhile message for you, tendered in all sympathy, for I've just passed through such an era, and feel that I would like to shout from the housetops about a truly wonderful preparation which a woman cosmetician has brought out at just this time when brittle, scaly nails seem an even greater problem than at any other season of the year.

A white liquid, it forms a protective sheath over the nails and actually strengthens them, while preventing the long, tapering tips breaking. In addition, it aids in keeping the nails healthy, prevents discoloration and gives a beautifully smooth surface over which to apply liquid polish.

Following the manicure routine in which polish has been removed, nails shaped and cuticle pushed back, be sure that the nails are thoroughly clean, dry and free from oil. Then smooth on the liquid evenly, as you would your polish, carrying it over the half moons and out to the tip of each finger. When it is absolutely dry, apply your favorite shade of polish. You'll love the unusually beautiful finish and in no time, if you use it regularly, will see a marked appearance in your formerly brittle, broken and peeling, unattractive nails. You'll become less "hand-conscious" and thereby display more natural poise.

If you are interested in this new item—and if you've ever been embarrassed as I have over ugly nails I'm sure you are—phone me at my office in The Constitution building. If you do not live in Atlanta visit, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Cronin Finds Heartbreaks Match Hollywood's Glamor

Impressions of Hollywood, as viewed by a British celebrity, are set forth here in the third article by a world-renowned novelist. Dr. Cronin, who has just returned to London from the film capital, is the author of "The Citadel," "Hatter's Castle" and other best-selling novels.

By DR. A. J. CRONIN.

(Copyright, 1933, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc., and The Atlanta Constitution. World Rights Reserved.)

LONDON, Jan. 25.—I have written of the glamor and success, the wealth and luxury of Hollywood. But there is another side to this gay picture. Or perhaps another picture, painted with blood and tears.

One evening I was eating my dinner in the Brown Derby on Vine street in Hollywood, a famous place, but woefully self-conscious, almost as bad as the Savoy Grill at midnight.

You enter, and everyone looks up to see if you are a celebrity. You look up from conversation, unwittingly disturbed by those unhealthy stares.

Anybody from the whole wide world might come through that door, you see, from Charlie Chaplin to the ex-Crown Prince of Sweden.

My companions were well-dressed, our dinner was excellent—not even the reindeer filets of Wall Street can beat this California cooking—and I was eating strawberries in midwinter.

Everything looked prosperous and fine. It was when there was a general shift of chairs for departure that I and the young man next to me both saw the $5 bill on the floor.

By my surprise, he pounced on it and thrust it into his pocket. He had dropped it, he said. Somehow I knew that young fellow was lying; his fingers curled too hungrily about that money.

In the midst of our pleasant party I saw a shrewdly upon the sinister, really behind the bluff and glitter of Hollywood.

Everyone is so well dressed, it is a shock to find out that Sunset boulevard is not paved with gold. And I set out to know the inside story, if I could get it, of that great crowd of Hollywoodians I have heard called "waities," for they do little more than wait, week in and week out, to be called to work, and in the meantime, must not only get along as best they can, but keep up appearances as well.

Two days later, another revealing incident. In the car which had been put at my disposal, I had driven up for curb service at an eating place and sat sipping a malted milk.

A swanky sedan with convertible top drove in alongside, its rear to the gas pump, its hood toward the eating stand.

"One gallon," said the pretty blonde over her shoulder; then to the brunette besides her: "And I bet coffee's a dime; it always is when you're broke. If we had a million it would only be a nickel!"

They laughed and signaled a waiter; he said "coffee was a dime."

"One cup, then," said the brunette.

But he was experienced. "Tell you what, I'll bring one cup and take it back for a refill, and your friend can drink that."

Gaily they had their cup, and left no tip.

"And a car like that costs a couple thousand bucks," said the gas attendant when they drove away. "That's Hollywood for you."

A pathetic collection of facts began rolling my way. One day, a seedy little fellow approached me at a stop-light and asked for a lift.

A common custom, for distances are long, the studios are five or six miles out some times, and it is practically impossible to report on time if they depend on the buses.

Extras may be in studio regalia and have to keep their clothes in order, so they cannot walk it.

When rain does come, it is tropical and heavy; the streets become rushing reservoirs of water, for southern California could not afford to build drains.

We can't live without poetry. The heart needs noble words to feed on—such as Abou Ben Adhem speaks in the beloved and famous poem by Leigh Hunt.

To the angel Abou said: "I pray thee, then Write me as one that loves his fellow-men."

The angel wrote and vanished. It came again with a great wakening light.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY

GRANDFATHER OF ALL BOILS

A boil is, after all, a purely natural institution. A carbuncle, on the other hand, is a cosmic event. Whereas, furunculosis or boil disease is course more or less walled off, or localized, carbuncle spreads about, undermining the skin, and eventually destroying a considerable area of tissue, if not the arm of the victim.

Some of the practical hints and the management of a boil apply well to the management of carbuncle—as far as either may be amenable to self or home treatment.

1. Sometimes the trouble may be aborted if the first redness, irritation or soreness is immediately painted with tincture of iodine today and perhaps once again tomorrow.

2. Often the best treatment immediate incision (by the surgeon) and drainage, as soon as pain and swelling appear.

3. If such radical treatment is not employed, then good conservative treatment is the application of hot moist saline compresses, or of plain table salt in a quantity of hot water, to which is added two teaspoonfuls of boracic acid. This accomplishes all that a physician can, but does not favor multiplication of pus-producing germs. Such a dressing is actually "drawing" than anything grandma ever knew. It gives relief from the tension, throbbing pain, and also promotes early drainage.

4. Rest and general tonic treatment.

Instead of a "core," necrotic dead tissue at the center, a carbuncle has a more or less extensive slough with numerous openings through the overlying skin. The pain of carbuncle is severe like molten lead poured over a spot or a huge clag embedded in and gagging on the skin. At times there is usually considerable systemic sepsis or blood poisoning, with it, causing great prostration, weakness, chills, fever and some cases fatal exhaustion. Hence the importance of complete rest, tonic, supporting or constitutional treatment—which can be intelligently managed only by attending physician. He understands the individual requirements.

As a rule the best course for carbuncle is confinement in bed and moist antiseptic compresses (not poultice), and early incision for drainage when the attending physician considers it necessary.

For relief of the pain of carbuncle acetyl salicylic acid (aspirin) seems more effective than the narcotic and is comparative safe when the patient remains in bed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Warm Bath.

Is it injurious to take a warm bath almost every night? It seems to relax my muscles when I cannot go to sleep. (Mrs. H. E.)

Answer—No, it is all right. I have what the doctor calls varicose ulcer? (M. W.)

Answer—Send a 3-cent stamp envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on varicose veins and varicose ulcer.

Feet.

Son, 19, has had swollen gland under jaw for eight weeks. He has fever and headaches and seems quite sick but will not go to the family doctor as he fears tuberculosis? (Mrs. R. M. D.)

Answer—Why not call in the doctor yourself? Perhaps your son is not quite rational. You should not permit him to go on like that.

ers, gets serious in conversation, pops the question to you, his point and you are ready to answer, yes, then is time enough for him to give advice and make requests about limiting dates and devoting your time to him. Until that day, beware of invitations suggestions. They usually come from those who have axes to grind and you shouldn't be the grinders for their axes.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I have been going with a married man but didn't know he had a wife until just recently. He told me he didn't love her but pitied her and that but for the small boy which each of them wanted to keep he would be divorced. I am unhappy over being mixed up in such a tragedy for I have a great deal of pride but I also have a heart and belongs to him. At present things are just hanging fire while he tries our love to see which is stronger. What is your opinion as to the divorce? Should I insist on it or wait until he decides?

X. Y. Z.

Answer: You poor child, your pride is about to be dragged in the dust and your heart put in the lemon squeezer. Mr. Married Man has already had the trial and the verdict is in favor of the wife. He has not the slightest idea of getting a divorce to marry you. He's afraid to tell you the truth for fear of your making trouble for him but you should be able to read the handwriting on the wall, which says plainly: "All ye who enter here, leave hope behind."

Mr. Married Man is safely ensconced at home with his wife and child and there he will remain.

Now put him out of your thoughts and find yourself some respectable boy friends who will play the game with you fairly and squarely, which the married man hasn't done.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

FIND FRIENDLY CHEER IN POEMS

We can't live without poetry. The heart needs noble words to feed on—such as Abou Ben Adhem speaks in the beloved and famous poem by Leigh Hunt.

To the angel Abou said: "I pray thee, then Write me as one that loves his fellow-men."

The angel wrote and vanished. It came again with a great wakening light.

And showed the names whom love of God had blessed, And lo! Ben Adhem's name led all the rest.

Poetry gives us courage, too. Remember Kipling's "If": "If you can wait and not be tired by waiting, Or being lied about, don't deal in lies—"

And what matter if the day be dark and wintry—if you can read Wordsworth's lines: "—Then my heart with pleasure fills, And dances with the daffodils."

At the twilight hour, tender memories come with George MacDonald's lullaby "Baby": "Where did you get those eyes so blue? Out of the sky as I came through."

In our 40-page booklet, "Poems the Whole World Loves," these and many more famous poems are given complete. By Kipling, Longfellow, Tennyson, Poe, other loved poets.

REED'S CITY SURVEY DUE ON FEBRUARY 5

Consultant to Present Report to Atlanta Officials at Meeting.

Report of Dr. Thomas H. Reed's survey on the government of Atlanta and Fulton county will be presented to city and county officials February 5, Dr. Reed announced yesterday.

Dr. Reed, who is director of the consultant service of the National Municipal League, will give the report at a meeting to be held at 7:30 o'clock, February 5, at the Henry Grady hotel.

In a letter to Mayor Hartsfield, Dr. Reed invited the mayor and council, Fulton county commission, city and county boards of education, and the survey committee and board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, to attend the meeting.

"We would appreciate it if you would see that the invitation is extended to the members of the city council and the heads of departments of the city government who may be very much interested in certain phases of the report," the letter said.

Dr. Reed began the study of city and county governments last fall. He said he hoped it "will prove of lasting benefit to the community."

Lieutenant Frank M. Kreml, of the Evanston, Ill., and director of the International Association of Police Chiefs, is scheduled to be in Atlanta February 3 with an aide for the purpose of conferring with Mayor Hartsfield, members of city council and police officials of Atlanta's traffic situation.

Plans for the development of national park areas in the vicinity of Peachtree creek and other sites of battles in the War Between the States in Atlanta and vicinity were discussed yesterday in Washington, D. C., between C. F. Palmer, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and officials of the Interior Department.

Palmer, who flew down from Washington last night, said he had been given "definite assurance" that E. A. Memoray, associate director of the national park service, will come to Atlanta early next month for inspection of the sites.

Already, he said, Atlanta has donated some 40 acres in the Peachtree creek section to the government for a national park site and other sections are to be provided through the work of the national park committee of the chamber, headed by Walter Hendricks.

The city, Mr. Palmer pointed out, is following a program for preserving all available battle areas of the War Between the States for the purposes of history as national park reservations.

Tourist Bureau To Hold 25th Anniversary Meet

Governor Rivers and Mayor Hartsfield will attend the annual meeting and silver anniversary banquet of the Atlanta Convention and Visitors' Bureau at 6:30 o'clock tonight at the Biltmore hotel.

A. L. Belle Isle, president of the bureau, and Faber A. Bollinger, executive vice president, will speak. Belle Isle will report on work of the bureau in bringing visitors to this city.

'Funny Hat' Era Is Giving Way To Plainer Style

The news has leaked out in Atlanta fashion circles that the trend is away from "funny hats" for women.

The folks who buy and sell them, and who saw them rise into amazing heights and patterns during the winter of 1937, aren't saying that the spring bonnets will be as plain and as utilitarian as a man's fedora.

But they do predict their fashionable customers will be wearing Easter hats less startling and that the mode looks toward more placid shapes and untroubled lines.

Hair styles may go along with the new hats and be simpler, more youthful and more easily cared for. The fashion foreseen by one hair stylist here is the short cut, as high as the hairline in the back, softer and fuller than the single.

The dawn of a new day for hats sees three types foremost: The small-brimmed cloche coming well down on the head; the neat, brisk little sailor, and the turban.

The cloche and the wide-brimmed Breton (which sneaks in as part of the sailor) are considered universally flattering. The straight flat sailor is usually reserved for women with oval or long faces and should be counted out by the moon-faced ones. The new turban, designers claim, is adaptable to the needs of the wearer and can be built up to add height, or cut to distract attention from wide faces.

Two millinery by-products of the past winter remain with us. Chin straps and under-the-chin ties are still seen, although not as frequently. Veils also are being shown. They will be worn, in summer, not over the face as formerly, but brought from the back of the hat around the neck and shoulders.

One department store in a fashion showing, however, presented a large black felt cartwheel with the coarse black mesh veil over the face, hanging as low as the collarbone.

DIXIE WAR PARK PLANS DISCUSSED

Palmer Confers With Officials in Washington.

Plans for the development of national park areas in the vicinity of Peachtree creek and other sites of battles in the War Between the States in Atlanta and vicinity were discussed yesterday in Washington, D. C., between C. F. Palmer, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and officials of the Interior Department.

Palmer, who flew down from Washington last night, said he had been given "definite assurance" that E. A. Memoray, associate director of the national park service, will come to Atlanta early next month for inspection of the sites.

The city, Mr. Palmer pointed out, is following a program for preserving all available battle areas of the War Between the States for the purposes of history as national park reservations.

Funeral services for Thomas Jefferson Jennings, 29, former Atlanta railroad man who died recently in Chicago, will be held today in Baton Rouge, La.

STUDENTS TO 'RUN' O'KEEFE SCHOOL

Pat Roberts, 16, Will Be 'Principal' at Annual 'Student Day.'

Students will "rule the roost" at O'Keefe Junior High school today. Following a tradition that has grown for more than a decade, the pupils at the Junior High school will take over duties of all officials, teachers and anyone else who might be employed in the building.

Today is official "Student Day." Pat Roberts, 16-year-old president of the student body, will take the place of Principal Stanley M. Hastings, while 15-year-old David Blackshear, vice president, will replace Mrs. Louise C. Stakely, assistant principal. Both Hastings and Mrs. Stakely will be present, however, to see that nothing goes wrong.

Not only will students be in charge of the office, but in every classroom during the day. Teachers have been ordered to relinquish their positions temporarily and be pupils, while some star pupils will take over the class.

Students will also patrol the corridors as monitors. And in the afternoon assembly period, only students will have parts on the program.

Only in one respect will officials or teachers be recognized: They will be allowed to "advise," if anything goes awry.

"Student Day is an established custom at O'Keefe," Principal Hastings said yesterday afternoon. "We are one of the oldest schools in the country with such a day, and other high schools have patterned such a program after ours."

"It is all part of our student government program. We believe students should have the responsibility to run the school for a day, at least."

Mrs. Philip Graves, chairman of the 1937 nominating committee, will introduce the new officers. Brief reports will be read by Mrs. M. H. Elder, treasurer, and Miss Mable Robson, chairman of the Beck Fund.

Willie Livingstone, assistant golf professional at the Capital City Country Club, kept his news eye on the ball last week—with a profitable result.

Livingstone's Photo Tip was adjudged the best last week, and he was therefore awarded the first prize of $5 for that interesting story about young David Black Jr., two-year-old son of the former state golf champion.

The story and pictures of Master Black, swinging his special-made golf clubs, appeared in The Constitution last Tuesday morning.

Two other alert Atlantans won dollar prizes. They are Miss Margaret E. Bink, of 1511 North Macintosh drive, N. E., for her Photo Tip on little Minnie Hamilton, 11, missionary's daughter, who came safely through war-torn China only to break her arm in an Atlanta schoolyard, and Miss Margaret Farmer, of 27 Chapel Road, N. W., for her Photo Tip about two trainloads of CCC recruits leaving Fort McPherson for California.

Although his condition was not considered serious, young Roosevelt was advised to rest for several days. He secluded himself at the home of friends.

Nikma sensed Tarzan's fighting mood and knew it was a perilous danger. The little monkey trembled with fright. "Come, Tarzan, be wiser; let us go away into the jungle. They are terrible men. They will kill us. Nikma does not wish to see Tarzan die."

The ape-man gave no heed to Nikma's warning. Instead he maneuvered until he was just above the warriors, who were now pummeling the white man with sticks and spear-halts. Tarzan had decided to try threats in his first effort to win freedom for the captive.

"Cease beating the prisoner," he called down. The warriors halted, paralyzed with terror at this command from the skies. "It is the Tree-God," one quavered, "we must obey." "It cannot be," said another, "for the Tree-God dwells only in our sacred grove."

Among them was a reckless young warrior who boasted that he feared nothing; he would defy this mysterious presence. "We are the children of the Tree-God," he shouted boldly, "and he will allow no harm to befall us." With that he dealt the captive a brutal blow.

Committee Spurs Polio Party Ticket Sale; Women Report Quota Already Exceeded

Radio Programs for Rest of Week Announced by I. K. Hay.

Full strength of the Fulton county committee for the celebration of the President's birthday was thrown behind the ticket sales committee yesterday at meetings of men and women volunteer workers. The celebrations to be held Saturday will raise funds to combat infantile paralysis.

Radio programs were announced for today and the remainder of the week by I. K. Hay, of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Fulton county sponsor of the celebrations.

W. A. Horne Jr. and Hugh Howell will speak over WAGA at 6:15 o'clock today, while Lawrence S. Camp will speak over WGST at 6:20 o'clock. Hugh Dorsey Jr. will speak over WATL at 7:05 o'clock.

Exceed Ticket Quota.

Enthusiastic women campaigners reported yesterday they had sold more than $2,000 worth of tickets, considerably more than the amount they pledged. Ira Evans, general secretary, said the committee expects to realize approximately $2,000 from sale of buttons to school children.

Dr. C. C. Aven, Dr. E. H. Green and Dr. H. C. Sauls were appointed to a committee to co-ordinate efforts of physicians in helping the campaign to fight infantile paralysis, Evans said.

Dr. James Marion Alsbrook, chairman of the DeKalb county committee, pointed out yesterday that county quotas in the campaign are based on population. He asked DeKalb citizens who work in Atlanta to contribute to the DeKalb county fund.

At the women's meeting yesterday, Mrs. G. N. Rucker, of Roswell, reported her city would more than reach its ticket sale quota as did Mrs. W. W. Rivers, of Fairburn. Mrs. C. M. Reeves, of East Point, told of plans for a dinner at Russell High school Saturday night.

Radio Schedule.

The radio program schedule for the remainder of the week follows: Tomorrow: Embury Eve at 3:30 o'clock over WSB; Terrell Ross, George Yancey and Bill Manley's orchestra over WGST at 10 o'clock tonight.

Friday: Hugh Head Jr. over

As Atlanta joined in the fight on infantile paralysis, Miss Katherine Woodward, Joe Brown Junior High school senior, was doing her part as director of President's birthday button sales at Joe Brown. She plans to raise $5 in each of the school's 48 classrooms. She already has received 1,000 buttons and has asked for 500 more.

WSB at 3:30 o'clock; Fain Peck over WGST at 3:30 o'clock and Vernon Brown over WATL at 7:05 o'clock; 8 o'clock, State Chairman Edgar Dunlap will make his final appeal to the citizens of the state to join the fight on infantile paralysis by attending the Presi-

400 EMORY ALUMNI MARK CHARTER DAY

Program at University One of Many Held in Fifteen States.

Praise for Emory University's proposal for a "great university and medical center" was voiced last night by Spessard Holland, Bartow (Florida) attorney, speaking to more than 400 Emory alumni celebrating the 25th anniversary of Emory's charter.

The "charter day" dinner at the university dining hall climaxed a day's program in which Emory alumni throughout the nation participated. Similar dinners were held last night in more than 14 states.

"Through prevention of disease, Emory's proposed plan for a great hospital and university center can curb crime and eradicate ignorance and make the university an even greater service to the south than it now is," Holland, a member of the class of 1912, said.

"It is Emory's destiny to set high standards of education for other centers in this section and thereby raise the educational standards for the entire south," he added.

Dr. T. Carter, Atlanta dentist, member of the class of 1908, was elected president of Emory's Atlanta Alumni Club following the dinner. He succeeds Dr. W. Earl Quillian as president.

Other officers included Dr. A. G. Fort, vice president; W. T. Hunter, secretary; Henry L. Bowden, treasurer; and Henry C. Heinz, alumni representative on the student athletic council.

Sears President Declares South Has a Particularly Bright Future

Dixie Best Equipped To Absorb Rural Population, Woods Says.

Predicting that cities eventually must absorb the "country population," General Robert E. Wood, 59-year-old president of Sears, Roebuck and Company, said here yesterday southern cities have a particularly bright future "industrially and financially" because they are better equipped for taking in rural population than other cities.

The south, he said, is headed for "bigger and better things," adding the opinion that the business recession is now near its end. The industrial slump has been more noticeable in the west and east than in the south, he asserted. "Industrial areas, particularly the motor and steel centers, have suffered most from the drop in business," he said.

General Wood, a part-time Georgian and retired army officer, said next to Augusta, Atlanta is "my favorite Georgia city." He explained that Mrs. Wood's girlhood home is in Augusta, where they now have a farm. She is the former Miss Mary Bertha Hardwick.

PRESIDENT SAYS U.S. NOT IMPERIALISTIC

Asserts Defense Policy 'Solely to Guarantee National Boundaries.'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today that the United States has "no imperial designs" and its national defense policy is "directed solely to the perpetuation of our democratic institutions and ideals and the guarantee of our national boundaries."

He made his remarks in a letter to the thirteenth women's conference on national defense. Mrs. Gladys Mooney, chairman of the conference and past president of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, read the letter to the delegates.

Mr. Roosevelt bespoke the aid of the conference in making his policy known "and in the support of the ideals upon which it rests."

James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, who spoke tonight, said "women are far less hysterical in their outlook than men," and therefore should take more interest in domestic and foreign affairs.

"The problem most difficult of solution for the United States is to provide security, but at the same time safeguard liberty, and that is the problem for every democracy," he said.
